THREATENS PEACE OF EUROPE

STRANGE DEALS BY MELLEN

Today's session of the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into the financial affairs of the New Haven road was the most exciting one so far. Here is what happened:

Louis D. Brandeis withdrew as counsel for the Fruit and Produce Exchange before the Interstate Commerce hearing, but continued to appear there as a "citizen of Massachusetts."

Forty business men headed by Charles H. Jones asked Brandeis to represent them at the hearing, but he refused, saying he would appear only in his capacity as a citizen, but he would see that their interests were protected.

Charles F. Choate, leading corporation lawyer, and counsel for the New Haven, appears at hearing as "representing the people."

Brandeis gives out correspondence showing that Briggs and Mead of the Fruit and Produce Exchange asked him in 1912 to represent them, contradicting a statement in Mellen's paid advertisement that Brandeis had offered his services to the Exchange.

Mysterious Payments Made.

Figures given today by Harold S. Brown, the expert accountant, under questions from Brandeis showed that:

President Mellen juggled $14,000,000 of stockholders' money and made mysterious payments in cash to unknown persons.

He engaged a New York trust president, Oakleigh Thorne, to purchase stock of two railroads, but not to let the public through "the newspapers know it, as it would bring him (Mellen) dangerously near some "scheme."

The New Haven kept over $11,000,000 as a special fund with J. P. Morgan & Co., which Mr. Morgan personally paid out while at the same time it kept the account on New Haven books as cash.

Brown, the expert of the commission, through Mr. Brandeis' questioning, showed that one entry on the New Haven's books for a note of $100,000 was split up into cash and ten one thousand dollar bills paid to some one whom Mr. Brown could not find out.

Brown told of his difficulty in getting at the books of the New Haven. He said he had to make a requisition on the general manager for letter files.

Fearful of Publicity.

These letters showed that Mr. Mellen was carrying on something with Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America of New York, which he was very anxious to keep from the newspapers.

"If it should become known," Mr. Mellen wrote in effect, "the public would comment unfavorably on my being brought so dangerously near your scheme."

Mr. Brandeis uncovered what he called a "wonderful transaction" of stock when the New Haven road sold 1,400 shares of Old Colony stock for $260,400 to the New England Navigation Company on the note of Charles S. Mellen. Nine days later the navigation company received this stock in exchange for Mr. Mellen's note, and it was sold back to the New Haven, where it started from.

Mr. Brandeis then went into the stock transactions of Mr. Mellen through Mr. Thorne and the house of J. P. Morgan & Co. in the purchase and construction of the New York & Portchester Railroad and the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad.

These are what are generally called the "paper" road. They cost nearly a

CHARLES F. CHOATE, NEW 'FRIEND' OF THE PEOPLE

Charles F. Choate, when asked today whom he represented at the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation of the New Haven, said:

"I represent the people, the same as Mr. Brandeis."

Here is the record of the new champion of the people:

Director Boston Holding Company, which bought John L. Billard's Boston & Maine stock, and out of which somebody made $2,700,000.

Director National Shawmut Bank, of which Timothy E. Byrnes, vice-president of the New Haven, is also a director.

Director Old Colony Railroad, part of the New Haven system.

Has represented the New Haven as chief counsel for past many years, their big legal gun brought into any fight only when the issue was of tremendous importance and danger to the New Haven.

The Choate family owns thousands of shares of New Haven stock.

TY COBB TO PLAY BALL AT NAVIN'S PRICE

DETROIT, April 25.—It was announced here this afternoon that Ty Cobb, after a conference with President Navin, had decided to sign up before night and that he had lost his fight for more money. His salary will be less than the $15,000 a year he asked.

In return for this, his signing up, it was said, all plans to punish the champion baiters would be dropped and Cobb would play as if nothing had happened.

Neither Cobb nor Navin could be reached to verify the report.

"BAT" NELSON AND WIFE HERE, HAPPY AGAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Matlock Battling Nelson have made up, and they're starting anew right here in a Back Bay suite.

Bth say this will be a "go" which isn't going to wind up with any more domestic "knockouts," but is going the full twenty rounds—meaning "till death do us part."

That's what they say.

Mr. Battling Nelson is the former lightweight champion of the world. He lost the title. He lost his wife—or thought he did, but now she has returned to him.

Mrs. Battling Nelson, as everybody knows, is the handsome little Gladys Fox, newspaper cartoonist whose romance with the pugilist was the talk of the continent three years ago. Then the Nelsons separated.

Out on Huntington avenue an AMERICAN reporter found the Nelsons living as happily as two doves today.

"Leave?" queried the wife. "Why, sure, I love Bat. He's a dandy husband, too. And this love's never going to end, believe me."

When the reporter called Mrs. "Bat" was busy in the kitchenette over the gas stove. She is a first rate cook. Her husband just dotes on her dishes, and—well, when the dinner gong sounded Bat Nelson was right on the job with all sorts of praise for his wife's cooking.

"Slice one grand cook," he said, "dinger! Yes bet. This is going to last this time, old man. Thanks for your best wishes."

DEPOSED HEAD OF CHELSEA LICENSE BOARD APPEALS

James E. Flan, former chairman of the Chelsea License Board, who was removed by Mayor Edward E. Willard and deposed to the position of an ordinary member, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus with the Supreme Court today, asking that he be reinstated to his former position.

He also asks that injunctions be issued by the court restraining the other two members of the board, Russeliaer Towle, now chairman, and George J. Keough, from issuing any more licenses in Chelsea liquor dealers.

FIND GIRL BRIDE OF BIGAMIST

Eva Louise Thayer of Somerville Highlands, the girl whom Frank V. Mapes deceived into a marriage when he already had a wife and two children, was found today by her father, Frank J. Thayer, in New York city, where Mapes had deserted her on their honeymoon.

The heart-broken girl is being brought back home to confront Mapes, who is now in East Cambridge jail charged with bigamy.

There is deep sympathy in the Highlands district of Somerville for the pretty, dimpled bride which Miss Thayer has been put by the wrong which Mapes is accused of having practiced upon her.

Her father, who is a foreman in the Boston central postoffice, went to New York yesterday, after his wife and failed to locate their deserted daughter in that city.

Get News of Daughter.

Mrs. Thayer hurried to New York last Monday, when she first learned that Mapes already had a wife. Her mother returned Wednesday unsuccessful. Mr. Thayer went to New York yesterday, following the arrest of Mapes. The girl was extracted from Mapes the fact that he had left Miss Thayer at the Hotel Plymouth on Thirty-eighth street. Mr. Thayer, armed with a letter from Chief Kendall of Somerville to the New York police, started local Manhattan immediately.

Today Chief Kendall received a telegram from Mr. Thayer that he had found his daughter. It is presumed she was located at the Plymouth Hotel.

It was also learned today that Mapes had taken Miss Thayer to Providence and Worcester on April 6 to be married, but had been unable to secure a license there. They returned to the Thayer home at No. 114 Josephine street, Somerville, where Miss Thayer declared she would not give up Mapes. Then her parents gave consent to the marriage and preparations were made for the marriage, which took place on April 20 and which constituted the bigamy with which Mapes is now charged.

The predicament of Miss Thayer and the arrest of the man she thought was her lawful husband, are due to his indifference in believing the legal Mrs. Mapes would not suspect anything wrong.

His plans had their inception some years back. Miss Mapes knew the Thayer girl for more than seven years, although he has been married to his present wife nearly ten years.

Mrs. Mapes Suspicious.

Mapes, with his wife and two children, on coming to Somerville took up quarters at No. 91 Perkins street. One night he went to the Thayer home and there renewed his acquaintance with Miss Thayer, who he knew in Medford seven years ago.

Professing love for the girl and declaring himself single, Mapes was accepted by Miss Thayer. They secured a license last Sunday and in the afternoon were married. They immediately left on a trip from the South Station.

Mrs. Mapes had worried over her husband's frequent trips away from home, and, when Monday morning came and he failed to appear, remembering how he had left her once before in North Dakota, she set out to look for him.

Remembering her husband had told her he had sought work as a traveling salesman for the Davidson Rubber Works, Mrs. Mapes called at that concern's office. There she learned he had given his address as No. 114 Josephine avenue, the Thayer home.

OLIVER E. HAWES DEAD.

Oliver E. Hawes of Melrose, died at the Melrose Hospital today, following an operation ten days ago. Mr. Hawes was sixty-one years of age and lived at No. 123 Highland avenue, Melrose. A wife survives him.

Mystery in Man's Suicide by Gas for Love of Woman

Disappointed love is thought to be responsible for the suicide by gas of a man at No. 75 West Brookline street, South End, named Borlin, who twice before had tried to kill himself.

Among his papers are a number of poems written in Swedish. One is preceded by these words in English:

"You are gone from my life forever"

Mr. Borlin was a man of considerable mystery to the lodgers. He was only thirty-five years old, yet he had enough means to support himself without work. He was quiet, of pleasing appearance and considerable education; he told none of his personal affairs. Not even his first name was known in the house.

Whether Mr. Borlin wrote that line himself, in reference to some girl he once had loved, or whether it was a written rejection of his heart by some girl, was a question raised by those who took charge of his effects.

One theory was that Borlin had written the poem, sent it to the woman and had received it back with the chilling line written over it by the one whose love he has sought.

There were several manuscripts of poems in the bureau drawer.

Borlin had lived there five months. In his pockets was found $230 and a watch.

Last night he seemed cheerful. At 7:30 today the landlady smelled gas. The door was forced. Borlin was dead on the bed, with the window closed and gas flowing from the jet.

Medical Examiner Leary was notified and the body was removed to the City Hospital morgue.

Twice before Borlin was taken from a gas-filled room. The second time he was revived with difficulty.

B. R. Borlin of No. 391 Ferry street, Everett, is said to be a relative of the dead man.

END PROSECUTION OF 'APPEAL' STAFF

GIRARD, Kan., April 25.—Federal Judge Pollock has sustained the demurrer in the famous Leavenworth case of the Appeal to Reason, which practically puts an end to the prosecution of Fred D. Warren, J. M. Wayland and C. L. Phifer of the Appeal editorial staff, indicted for sending obscene matter through the mails in violation of conditions in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. Deputy Warden Lemon was dismissed on the strength of the expose, and a congressional investigation sustained charges made by the Appeal.

KING NICHOLAS OF MONTENEGRO DEFIES THE GREAT POWERS

Today's developments have added to the tensity of the European war situation.

France, spurred by the Kaiser's military activity, has ordered 20,000 fresh troops to the German border.

KING NICHOLAS HOLDS SCUTARI.

Austria is hastening preparations to drive the Montenegrins out of Scutari alone, if the Powers will not aid her. The Vienna bourse today was hit hard by the war scare.

King Nicholas, dispatches say, has decided to move the Montenegrin capital from Cettinje to Scutari. Forty thousand allied troops hold Scutari in defiance of all Europe.

The great Powers meanwhile are marking time, apparently unable to agree as to what course to pursue. King Nicholas, ruler of the smallest State, is for the moment the big man of Europe.

Today's dispatches express the belief that, for "a consideration" he might withdraw from Scutari without coercion.

PARIS, April 25.—Fresh impetus was given to the European war scare today by the announcement in the Echo that the French government has begun preparations to move 20,000 additional troops to the German frontier, and that all the forts on the eastern border will be strengthened.

It is said that the determination to make this heavy troop movement was inspired by the complications which have followed the capture of Scutari by the Montenegrins, and by the demands and threats which Austria is making.

Austria Is Aroused.

A telegram from Vienna says that the Austrian government is getting ready to make independent action unless the Powers act in concert within the next few

20 Girls in Faint Carried from Fire at Somerville

A hundred and fifty girls fled in a panic from the four-story factory of the Piper Jewelry Company in West Somerville this afternoon when fire destroyed the storage warehouse of W. J. Thompson & Co. nearby.

Twenty of the girls fainted when the cry of fire was raised. They were picked up by men and carried safely from the building.

Smoke from the burning warehouse had filled the paper building. The girls became panic-stricken when they saw the smoke pouring into the windows—they thought the building in which they were standing was afire.

The flames were confined to the Thompson place. The loss was $10,000.

FORMER SEALER PALMER TURNS OVER $600 TO STATE

Former Sealer of Weights and Measures Daniel C. Palmer, who was removed from office Wednesday by Governor Foss and the Executive Council, today turned $600 over to State Auditor White at the State House and asked the latter to accept it as "restitution."

Shortly after Palmer's visit to the auditor's office, Mr. White and the commission on economy and efficiency announced that "any conclusion which might be derived from the restitution of the money that it would absolve Palmer from further prosecution would be unwarranted."

Palmer was removed for irregularities in his expense accounts. He was accused of turning in bills for trips he never took. He went to the auditor's office and examined all the vouchers for his expense accounts. Then he told the auditor that $600 was the amount due the State. He secured this sum and gave it to the auditor, saying it was his "restitution."

PEACEFUL PERSUASION BILL PASSES.

The bill which permits peaceful persuasion while strikes or lockouts are on, and which has been demanded by the trade unions for years, was passed by a voice vote to be engrossed in the House of Representatives today.

DRAFT, FIRST WORK BY ACTING MAYOR.

The first draft signed by the acting mayor today was for $32,728.56 to the Hugh Nawn Contracting Company for work in connection with the construction of the Boylston street subway.

20,000 BELGIANS BACK AT WORK.

BRUSSELS, April 25.—Twenty thousand iron workers, who were out in the manifold suffrage strike, returned to their duties today. There are still 250,000 men idle, it is estimated, but it is believed that the resumption of work will be complete by Monday.

Selectmen Charles E. Gladney of Ipswich today succeeded the late Howard G. Lane as master of the Essex County House of Correction. The appointment was made by Sheriff Samuel Johnson of Essex County.

UNION CONFERS WITH 'L' HEADS FOR BETTER PAY

The members of the executive board of the Boston Street Carmen's Union are today trying to ascertain the number of men in the union who are not citizens and urging the eligible ones to register at once.

This plan was decided upon at the opening of the conferences between representatives of the union and officials of the Boston Elevated, on the union's requests for better wages for the motormen, conductors, "L" system men, girl collectors, shop and mechanical, powerhouse, maintenance and road department, pit and barn men, and others, and also for better hours of labor and other working betterments.

Attorney James H. Vahey, General Organizer Fred Fay, President M. J. Higgins, Business Agent M. J. Nesdale and Edward O'Rourke and George Mulvey for the shop, mechanical and road men, are the union's representatives at the conference. It is expected that the conference will continue for at least two weeks.

nillion a mile and had no terminals in New York.

Mr. Brandeis showed that the New Haven had paid $95,528.02 for "expenses for advertising" to the Boston News Bureau, which yesterday sent out a report that Mr. Brandeis had been "republished" by the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange.

The management of the News Bureau stated today to the AMERICAN that the New Haven had paid this money to the advertising department of the Boston News Bureau, which department sent out to the Boston and New York newspapers all the paid display advertising of the New Haven, and these newspapers were paid by the News Bureau's advertising department for this advertising.

To represent the People.

A dramatic situation followed when Charles F. Choate, long an ally and leading lawyer for the New Haven, stood up after Mr. Brandeis had announced his appearance as a "citizen of Massachusetts" and said: "I, too, appear as a citizen of Massachusetts."

Mr. Choate was asked by the AMERICAN:

"Whom do you represent here, Mr. Choate?"

"I represent the people, the same as my dear brother, Mr. Brandeis."

"Who sent you here, or who requested you to appear?" he was asked.

"Who sent Mr. Brandeis here?" replied Mr. Choate.

At the opening of the hearing, Mr. Brandeis told Examiner Brown he wished to withdraw as counsel for the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange and to enter his appearance as a "citizen of Massachusetts."

He read the entire correspondence between himself and the Exchange and asked it be made a matter of record.

Just as Mr. Brandeis stopped speaking, Attorney Charles F. Choate, one of the leaders of the Massachusetts bar, and at various times counsel for the New Haven Railroad, rose at Mr. Brandeis' elbow.

Calmly, suavely, Mr. Choate addressed the court.

"I, too, desire to enter my appearance as a 'citizen of Massachusetts,' was Mr. Choate's opening. "I have not yet made any declaration of principles," he added.

Mr. Brandeis turned to Mr. Choate, smiling.

"But, Mr. Choate," he said, "you are the regular counsel for the New Haven Railroad, aren't you?"

"That isn't true," replied Mr. Choate "Well, then," persisted Mr. Brandeis, "you are counsel perhaps for the New England Navigation Company, subsidiary of the New Haven?" A ripple of laughter ran through the hearing room.

"Nor is that true," replied Mr. Choate. Then with some heat he added, "When I acted as counsel I did so openly."

The letters made public today by Mr. Brandeis are in direct contradiction to the statement printed in yesterday's News Bureau by D. F. Littlefield of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, over this question:

Did Brandeis offer his services to the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange in 1912?

Littlefield as quoted by the News Bureau, and reprinted in Meloni's pad ad in the Boston papers today says:

"Mr. Brandeis offered his services gratis to the exchange."

Sought Services of Brandeis.

Mr. Brandeis today read a letter which he wrote to Alton E. Briggs, secretary of the Fruit and Produce Exchange in reply, inclosing all his correspondence. Mr. Brandeis states in his letter today to Briggs that "you (Briggs) and Mr. Mead called upon me and requested me to act, and after consideration I assented, with the proviso that the matter being one of a public nature, I would not accept any compensation. What occurred is covered by the following correspondence:

"Boston, June 26, 1912.

Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange,
Alton E. Briggs, Esq., Secretary,
Over Faneuil Hall Market, Boston.

Dear Mr. Briggs—Replying to your and Mr. Mead's request of the 24th that I act as counsel for the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange in the investigation to be commenced before Commissioner on the 1st:

I find it will be possible for me to act as your counsel and I shall be glad to do so.

Nothing was said at our conference about compensation. I prefer to treat this as a public service, and shall therefore not accept any compensation. Yours very truly,

"Louis D. Brandeis."

In reply to this letter Mr. Briggs wrote to Brandeis saying: "Your decision to act for the exchange is accepted with much enthusiasm by our members," and after thanking him for agreeing to do the work without pay, Mrs. Briggs adds: "we can at least hope that the compensation or gratitude will exist in the highest degree."

MRS. KINGSLEY SWAN, whose baby's birth after the parents separated, friends of the family declare, brought about a reconciliation.

Baby Reconciles Kingsley-Swans; Drop Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, April 25.—In spite of former denials of his powers as an arbitrator, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Swan, prominent in New York and Newport society, has at last succeeded in reconciling his parents, according to friends of the family. The suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Swan before the birth of the baby, has been formally dismissed.

The wedding of Kingsley Swan, member of one of the oldest and wealthiest Brooklyn families, to Miss Mabel L. Miller, took place in October 1908. They parted a year ago.

In the meanwhile the little son had arrived. There were immediate rumors of a reconciliation, but Mrs. Swan's action was continued until the court was informed that both parties wished the litigation to be dropped.

TELEGRAPHERS' DEMANDS MAY BE GRANTED TODAY

At the conference today between Vice-President H. J. Horne of the Boston & Maine and the general committee of the railroad telegraphers, wage and hour demands are being discussed. It is said that a settlement is practically assured.

The adjustments of the Boston & Maine telegraphers' demands will mean, it is said, a settlement of the troubles on the New Haven system and at the Boston terminal.

MRS. BELMONT IS SUED FOR ARREST

NEW YORK, April 25.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who sailed for Europe yesterday, was served just before the vessel left with papers in two suits for $10,000 damages for false arrest. The suits were brought by Joseph and George L. Lyons, brothers, who went to Mrs. Belmont's residence early this month to deliver a gown to Mrs. Belmont. They got into an argument with Mrs. Belmont over payment for the gown, and she caused their arrest.

days to remove the Montenegrin army from Scutari.

The Ambassadors of the Powers are trying to form a program which will allay the feverish feeling in Europe and the dangerous tension which is growing up between the two big groups of Powers, the Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance.

One of the most curious situations which has arisen in Europe for many years now presents itself. Apparently peace or war hangs upon Montenegro, the smallest kingdom in Europe, and upon the action of King Nicholas, who rules fewer people than reside in Paris, Berlin or London.

Montenegro May Back Down.

One ray of hope came from Cettinje, the capital of Montenegro, in a dispatch which quoted Premier Tomanovitch as saying that in view of the concessions made by the Greeks and Servians to the demands of the Powers, Montenegro would not stand disgraced in the eyes of the world if she voluntarily gave up Scutari. The Greeks gave up Arlona, which will probably become the Albanian capital, and the Servians gave up Durazzo, one of the chief Albanian ports. The conservative element in European politics looks for Montenegro to yield as gracefully as possible and accept territory elsewhere.

GERMANS AND FRENCH IN HOSTILE CLASH OVER TRAIN SEATS

PARIS, April 25.—Another Franco-German incident is reported today. This one happened at Bordeaux. Two Germans entered a third-class compartment and tried to retain their seats by placing their umbrellas in their places while they walked up and down the station platform until the train was about to start.

Meanwhile two Frenchmen had entered the compartment and took possession of the seats, paying no attention to the umbrellas. There was some lively talk and references to the Nancy row in the theatre over a burlesque of the Germany army, the landing of the German dirigible No. 24 at Luneville and the recent affair where the two German aeroplane men landed on French soil. There was a hot altercation, but the Germans promised upon the station police commissary taking the names of the Frenchmen. They also declared that they would lay a complaint before the German consul on their arrival in Paris.

ZEPPELIN BALLOON EPISODE STILL STIRS TWO GOVERNMENTS

BERLIN, April 25.—The Luneville incident, involving the landing of a German Zeppelin military balloon on French soil, still commands official attention. Herr von Jagow, the imperial Foreign Minister, today expressed regret to M. Cambon the French Ambassador, that the sub-prefect of Luneville, who was very active against the German officers on the balloon, had been promoted for his vigilance. It is reported from Paris that the French government contemplates lodging an espionage charge against the German officers on the dirigible and to demand their return to France for trial.

PROF. EASTMAN AGAIN ON STAND IN GROGAN SUIT

The care of a dog belonging to Mrs. Elizabeth W. Grogan figured in the testimony on cross-examination today of Professor Charles R. Eastman at the hearing before Master Burton F. Gray in the Tremont building on the suit brought by Mrs. Grogan to secure her share of the $40,000 estate left by her father, Aivan G. Clarke.

The suits marks another chapter in the famous Eastman-Grogan feud which began with the shooting of Richard Grogan by Professor Eastman twelve years ago.

Professor Eastman, who is now at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, was cross-examined by Attorney Hugh D. McClellen. Neither Mrs. Grogan nor her daughter, Miss Beryl Grogan, was in court when the hearing opened.

'MY HARVARD EDUCATION WORTHLESS'

—John Haynes Holmes.

Harvard College and Boston school circles were stirred today by the charges of Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, Harvard graduate and formerly a pastor in Dorchester, that his Harvard College education has been almost worthless to him in the struggle for life, and that the Boston common school system is designed for the benefit of the few. He uses the term "special privilege" in referring to the entire school system of Massachusetts.

Rev. Dr. Holmes says that of the ninety odd members of his class in a Boston High School, all but fifteen had to go into the world to make a living, knowing nothing that would help them to earn it. The clergyman's attack on Harvard is in line with the statements made by Henry Cabot Lodge and Colonel Roosevelt in recent magazine articles. Both declared that their Harvard training was of very little value to them, save socially in the way of lasting friendships which were formed at college.

Culture a Good Dessert.

Rev. Dr. Holmes, who is now pastor of the Church of the Messiah in New York, had this to say of his Harvard and Boston public school education:

"I had the best education money can buy in the United States. Yet all things that are worth while in material existence I taught myself after I left college. The things I labored over in those years at preparatory school and college I never turn to now, except for my amusement.

"Culture is well, but I believe with Herbert Spencer that it is the business of education to teach the child something about the world he lives in, not so much about Kings and their consorts. Culture does well as the dessert, or the vegetables or the flowers, but the bread and meat, the nourishment of education, lies in teaching men what to do."

Dr. Holmes spoke with humorous scorn of his one year of French, his one year of physics, which gave him only a haggardly smattering of those studies, and says that failure to teach him German closed to him the door of the world's richest philosophical literature. He learned very little of English and American history, nothing of chemistry, astronomy, biology, he said.

"We still have in education," he added, "the bugaboo that nothing is worth while unless it bears the label 'classical.'

"All knowledge was nothing unless it is made my tool to be used in the struggle of life. Of the ninety-odd members of my class in a Boston high school, all but fifteen had to go into the world to make a living, knowing nothing that would help them to earn it.

Special Privileges.

"Talk about special privileges! The whole machine is geared to the pace of the limited number who intend to go to college. Only 200 or 300 young men enter Harvard every year. What of the thousands who cannot go to college? I hope to see the day in this country when this abomination will be abolished. Why, the whole curriculum of the public schools in Massachusetts, which is controlled by Harvard University, was once changed to fit requirements of the Harvard entrance examinations!

"Success is judged by material results. A man amasses $70,000,000 or $80,000,000 in finance, and when he leaves it on his death we are told he is a great man. I don't know why he is a great man, but this is a material age."

Rev. Dr. Holmes spent six years at Harvard. He received his B. A. in 1902, and his degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology in 1904. He was at one time pastor of the Third Religious Society of Dorchester.

Holmes' Classmates.

Some of his classmates at Harvard were Dr. John Amory Lowell Blake of Boston; Hollis Burgess, the yacht designer and builder; Paul Naylor Coburn, the athlete; Arthur Lithgow Devens, the Boston banker; George Allan England, the author; Robert Walton Gowdet, the millionaire and known as the "richest single man" in America; Professor Ernest Herrmann, Paul Grossman of Simmons College, and Alfred Winsor, son of the well known Boston banker.

Among his classmates in the Harvard Divinity School were Dr. Paul Samuel Bridenbaugh, Dr. William Merriam Crane and Professor Henry Goodson Ives.

TWO FAMILIES IN ROXBURY FLEE AT FIRE; LOSS $1,000

Two families were driven into the street by smoke during a fire which caused a damage of $1,000 in the two-family house at Nos. 7 and 9 Akron street, Roxbury, early today.

The blaze started between the partitions, from some unknown cause and burned into the attics of both sections of the house, owned and occupied by Edward A. Dudley and Horace Abrews.

The blaze was discovered by a policeman who awakened the occupants.

Actress Rebukes Amherst Men Who Threw Peanuts

NORTHAMPTON, April 25. — Miss Winslow, an actress playing at the local Academy of Music, rebuked three Amherst College students who threw peanut "whacks" at the actors from their perch in the box above the stage. Miss Winslow stopped in the middle of her lines and said:

"You fellows up there in that box had better keep still or leave the theatre. We are here to work and not to be insulted."

As she spoke Miss Winslow pointed her finger at the students. The latter were as quiet as church mice after that.

SAYS MRS. STOCKER 'FLITS' ABOUT IN GORGEOUS GOWN

LOS ANGELES, April 25.—According to H. Franke, who is seeking the recall of H. A. Unruh of Arcadia, as executor of the "Lucky" Baldwin estate, Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker does not live in Arcadia, but in a palatial car, in which surrounded by a wardrobe of gorgeous gowns and "diamond-studded stockings and slippers," she flits about the country.

The estate is now ordered distributed, after four years of liquidation, in the Superior Court.

Proceeds from sales of realty valued in excess of $11,000,000 were ordered divided between Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker and Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughrey.

Favor Woman as Postmistress at Rochester, N. H.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Congressman Reed of New Hampshire today recommended to Postmaster-General Burleson the appointment of Miss Grace Edna Emmons as Postmaster at East Rochester, N. H.

Should Tell You Where To Buy Your Clothes

A Story of 40 Years Ago of Yesterday and of Today

When this great store first opened its doors, about forty years ago, it had the distinction of being the only establishment in Boston selling reliable clothes at cut prices. The people named it "The Store With the Little Prices." Satisfying customers—making new friends—growing year by year—adding space—Vorenberg's in time took in the entire block, and the people named it "The Big Store With the Little Prices."

Other stores have come and gone—but Vorenberg's prospered under the distinction of lowest prices—lived up to their reputation and kept growing—retaining and pleasing their customers—Their boy patrons grew into men, married and brought their sons to be clothed, and now three generations of loyal customers trade at this store, knowing by experience its value-giving virtues.

When we point to our splendid business—our thousands of loyal customers—our low prices and the fact that we give greater values than any other store, it is not at all in a boastful spirit—but rather one of Pride—Pride that we have done and are doing for our patrons that which no other store can do.

Unlimited cash capital—and the ability to take advantage of every trade condition—very low expense—and the grim determination to undersell every other merchant at all times—has given us the enviable reputation we richly deserve and one which you will profit by when you come here for your clothing.

MORGAN VISITS HIS FATHER'S MEMORIAL

HARTFORD, Ct., April 25.—J. P. Morgan has made a visit to his father's grave in Cedar Hill Cemetery, and also visited the Morgan Memorial. Some significance was attached to his visit to the latter, but he declined to say whether or not some of his father's art treasures would be brought here.

A Few Examples of the Immense Buying Power of $15 at Georges in Spring Clothes

THIS season marks a great GEORGES triumph. After years of constant effort I am now able to give you GEORGES Model Garments at $15, that I honestly believe cannot be duplicated elsewhere for service under $25, and in addition being designed and fashioned by leading Custom style creators they are built on lines absolutely distinctive from readymades.

Pin Stripes

Pin, pencil and chalk stripes represent the tip-top of fashion this season. In many effects, on grounds of black or blue unfinished worsteds, medium weight serges and flannels. See how beautifully they're carried out in the new Sack Suits, coats somewhat narrower and shorter, with patch pockets; waistcoats just high enough to show above the coat lapels, and trousers narrowed to suit the coat. Generous assortment at $15.

Norfolks

Last year's revival of Norfolks has apparently brought this smartest of all young men's styles to stay. Many new models here, some with yoke and box pleats, some narrow-pleated front and back, and some with pleated back and four patch-pocket fronts. You will find them as fashion dictates, in all shades and patterns, grays predominating. Plenty at $15.

Club Checks

Club checks and over-plaids are back in vogue, more beautiful than ever. Principally in grays, ranging all the way from very light Cambridge to dusky Oxford shades. In many extreme and conservative models. Look best in GEORGES Americanized English soft - roll Sack Suits, with narrow coat and trousers and high vest with collar. At $15.

I have made just as generous provision for the man who cares to spend $18, $20, $25, or up to $40, with Suits and Top Coats covering the entire span of authentic style. Sizes to fit any man, whether he be short, tall, stout or slim.

MYSTERY IN FRIEND-HEIR OF PALMIST

The unusual story of how a casual meeting between two men led to a friendship which resulted in one of them being named in the other's will for the bulk of his fortune became known today with the visit to Boston of Cameron A. Patchin of New York, who is bequeathed most of the $35,000 estate of John W. Fletcher, the Boston palmist, who killed himself by taking poison at the Hotel Pelham to avoid arrest.

The story of why Fletcher left practically his entire fortune to Patchin marks another chapter in the many strange incidents in Fletcher's career. The will itself is one of the strangest documents ever filed at East Cambridge.

Aided by Palmist.

Patchin learned in Boston that the police had locked up Fletcher's parlors at the Pelham. The palmist's chief heir then went to Lowell to discuss the will with Judge A. F. Fisher, who drew up the document. He will attend Fletcher's

According to the facts which came out today, Patchin first met Fletcher about twelve years ago. That was in New York. Patchin was seeking an education. He needed money to defray the expenses of his schooling. He was willing to work, and did work.

Fletcher took a liking to him. This grew to friendship.

"I will furnish the money to help you educate yourself," Fletcher told his friend Patchin.

The palmist kept up his promise. The two men were soon fast friends. In New York Patchin lived at No. 25 West Forty-second street, where Fletcher had his New York palmist parlors.

Visited Friend Frequently.

Fletcher made frequent trips to New York, where he always saw Patchin. Thus it came about that when the palmist drew up his will he named his closest associate the heir to most of his fortune.

Until today Fletcher's life has been a mystery to the police and his clientele. The public knew little or nothing of him except that he had read the palms of Kings and Queens on his trips to Europe several years ago.

Fletcher went to Westford Academy when a boy. A student in the same class was Judge Fisher of Lowell. Fletcher was a bright lad and ranked highest in the class. But he always held aloof from the other pupils. He took up Spiritualism at the age of twelve and soon began giving "demonstrations." His father was Marcellus Fletcher of Westford, who was well known in Spiritualistic circles.

Seek Hidden Treasure.

Lowell relatives of Fletcher are today searching Lowell financial institutions for the hidden wealth of the palmist.

They took the first steps today to make a fitter contest of the will. They request the palmist's action in leaving the bulk of his fortune to Patchin.

Fletcher appointed as his executor C. L. Knapp of Lowell. Mr. Knapp is president of the Lowell Middlesex Safety Deposit and Trust Company.

The relatives in Lowell are Miss Annie Coolidge, a cousin, who acted as Fletcher's housekeeper and per occupied his palatial home at No. 47 Powell street, and two young men who today refused to make their identity known. They said they did not wish to become publicly identified with the dead palmist.

Tells of Enormous Fees.

One of these was authority for the statement that Fletcher made millions in his practice of palmistry. Fees of $50,000 and $100,000 from millionaires and crowned heads of Europe were not uncommon with Fletcher, he said.

This relative believes that Fletcher stored much of his wealth in the safe deposit boxes of Lowell institutions. Records of these banks and trust companies will be gone over today in a search for hidden securities.

Miss Coolidge is prostrated over Fletcher's death. She is ill at the Fletcher mansion today. It is believed that she will make a great effort to attend the funeral tonight. All arrangements are being shrouded with the greatest secrecy. The burial will be conducted secretly tonight in the Edson cemetery.

Meanwhile the relatives and friends of the palmist are using every effort to keep their identity concealed from the public. Though they held Fletcher in the highest regard and credit him with being a leader in his profession they do not wish to be publicly identified with his funeral.

Servant Gets $2,000.

Fletcher leaves his aunt, Laura A. Abbott, of Concord, N. H., $5,000 and his family homestead at No. 49 Powell street, Lowell.

To Daniel T. and Nancy Mason of Norridgewock, Me., he bequeaths $1,000, and to Annie L. Coolidge of Westford, $1,000. His mother's physician, Dr. Ransom A. Greene of Lowell, is left $1,000. Alfred H. Howe of Reno, Nevada, is bequeathed a number of personal effects, including a ring formerly belonging to King Ludwig of Bavaria.

Thomas H. Peterson, his colored manservant, is to receive $2,000.

Practically the entire balance is left to Patchin. Tals includes rings, diamonds, pearls, turquoises and the greater part of Fletcher's extraordinary collection of jewelry. Fletcher makes Patchin a further bequest of $1,000 to be paid within sixty days after Fletcher's death.

The will provides that if Patchin should survive Fletcher he will receive $500 every three months for three years.

Patchin now gets half-yearly payments from the income of a trust fund for three years. At the end of six years all of the trust is to go to Patchin. If Patchin dies within six years of Fletcher's death the trustee is directed to give the trust funds to the Lowell General Hospital for the establishment of free beds in the memory of the testator's mother.

A. F. Fisher, a Lowell attorney, who filed the will, said Fletcher left two uncles and a niece in Lowell. The filing of the will makes a public administrator unnecessary. Fletcher's apartments are still under guard, however.

Among those claiming a share of the estate, are residents of the New England States, New York, and even as far south as Maryland. It is expected many of them will be represented at the reading of the will.

MRS. SARAH MAUDE WAITT, Newton woman, who signs agreement for trial divorce with clubman, but who does not seek a court decree.

WAITTS BEGIN LIFE ON TRIAL SEPARATION

Mrs. Albert M. Waitt today leased apartments at the Hotel Buckminster and started to live out a trial separation from her husband, the wealthy son of the late Henry Waitt, millionaire cigar manufacturer.

Mrs. Waitt has not yet decided when she will institute legal proceedings to obtain a real divorce. She has avoided court proceedings because of her love for her mother-in-law. She wishes to spare her all possible notoriety.

In fact a representative of Mrs. Waitt stated to a reporter for the AMERICAN, "No such action is planned for—as yet." On the final two words, however, particular stress was laid.

Separation Long Expected.

The final separation of the couple, who lived with Mr. Waitt's mother at No. 60 Centre street, Newton, has been long expected. For their paths have been wholly divergent. Mrs. Waitt, who found her greatest enjoyment in the quiet of her home, cared little for the social side of life, although she belongs to some of the most exclusive clubs in Greater Boston. With her music, she being an exceptionally sweet singer, and with her miniature painting, at which she is most adept, and in the company of her aged mother-in-law, Mrs. Waitt found her chief sources of enjoyment.

In the Summer, it is true, that the couple were more or less in each other's company. This was when the magnificent estate at Falmouth was thrown open, and they acted as hosts to a legion of friends. But the rest of the year, it is said, seldom saw the couple together.

For Waitt found his time taken up mostly outside the Newton home. He is in the real estate business at Newton Four Corners, but, it is said, little of his time has been spent in the office, for a partner, whom, it is asserted by gays, attends to the business.

Belonging to many clubs, social and racing and hunting, Waitt was much of the time away from home. In the fall with boon companions he would make long trips to Maine and Canada, to hunt. And the many trophies in his den stood to his skill with the rifle. In the Spring frequent jaunts to Europe were enjoyed by the young bachelor. Mrs. Waitt, it is said, was seldom on these trips.

Couple's Paths Diverge.

Hence it was not many years after the marriage in 1897, when Mrs. Waitt was seventeen and her husband twenty-three, that she realized their paths diverged widely. Her tastes, she discovered, were wholly different to his. But a little one had come to the home, and the young wife thought perhaps there would be a better understanding between her and the husband.

But Mrs. Waitt's ways were not those of her husband's. And so, as the years passed, she realized, they grew further and more and more separated. Little Henry and the indulgent mother-in-law, who loved her own son devotedly, would see no harm in anything he did, were her sole anchors and comforts in the big Newton home.

While Henry was with her Mrs. Waitt endured the situation as best she could. But the years passed and the time came when the little lad, who is now twelve, had to go to school.

The Manor School, at Stamford, Ct., was selected as the place for his early training. And when he left the Newton residence to be gone many long months, the stage became desolate and lonely to the young wife.

For Waitt's clubs and other affairs called him away from home much of the time, and trips to New York necessitated his being absent frequently from Newton.

Mrs. Waitt still had her music and her painting, and, best of all, the aged mother-in-law, mother-in-law in name only for she loved her husband's wife as if the young matron was her own daughter.

When Mrs. Waitt realized that her mother-in-law's condition was such that she probably would not hear of any trouble between the husband and wife, if the matter was not aired to her, she declared she would get a divorce.

"I have instituted proceedings for a divorce," said Mrs. Waitt to a caller, "but I trust nothing will be said, as Mrs. Waitt is so ill."

But this program was changed, and it was finally agreed that a permanent separation would do for the present. And this went into effect today.

Waitt's friends declare that no startling charges can be proven against him. Waitt continues his residence with his mother.

The son, Henry Waitt, now in the Manor School, is intrusted to the care of Attorney Chester W. Ford, who has been appointed his guardian. Mr. Ford also arranged the separation for the couple.

The Waitts' marriage in the little Presbyterian church at Cliftondale, in 1897, was the result of a boyhood girlhood romance. Mrs. Waitt, who was Miss Sarah Maud Edgar, in her girlhood, lived in North Revere, as did the Waitts before the father gained his fortune and moved to Newton.

OPEN COLBART DEATH INQUEST NEXT MONDAY

ATTLEBORO, April 25.—An inquest on the death of Mrs. Eugene Colbart, victim of the burglar who also shot and seriously wounded Mary and Joseph Powers, brother and sister, will be held Monday morning at nine o'clock before Judge Philip E. Brady.

Mary Powers, who is in the St. Joseph's Hospital, continues to improve. The report that she was suffering from blood poisoning is not true. The bullet, which was removed from her shoulder and which is of the same calibre as the one that killed Mrs. Colbart, was today taken to Providence, where it will be compared with bullets taken from the body of Henry T. Moulter, who was seriously wounded by a burglar five weeks ago.

Fleton Thompson of Pawtucket, R. I., who is charged with the crimes, is still at large, but the police say they have received within the past twelve hours information that will probably lead to an arrest.

Seriously Hurt on the Eve of His Honeymoon Trip

[illegible]rtist on the eve of beginning his honeymoon trip, Atwood Tracy, thirty-[illegible] years old and employed as a fireman at Childs' restaurant, No. 007 Washington street, was seriously hurt at the restaurant early today, being crushed in an elevator well. He was carried to the Boston Market Square Relief Hospital, where his name was placed on the list of the dangerous ill.

Tracy was married a week ago today. And his bride planned to start their honeymoon next Monday. The couple, it is said, had set up housekeeping at 78 Belmont street, Everett. The illness overcame them when she heard of the accident today. She went to the hospital and remained at the side of Tracy.

Tracy recovered consciousness [illegible]ld up at his wife and said:

"Just badly hurt, so don't sob. I'll be well for our honeymoon, Monday."

Doctors said Tracy has a chance for recovery.

SAYS OFFICER DID SHOOTING AT HOPEDALE

HOPEDALE, April 25.—Following a storm of criticism for the fatal shooting of Emilio Bachiochi, one of the strikers at the Draper Company's plant in Hopedale, Captain William H. Proctor of the State police this afternoon made the following statement:

"The shooting was done, I believe, by a Hopedale officer not in uniform, and the officer shot in return to a fire by the pickets. The body of Bachiochi lay where it fell and was not dragged into a cart path as has been reported.

"The dead man was shot through the cords in the back of the neck and the bullet lodged in the Adam's apple."

Captain Proctor's statement caused a sensation among followers of the I. W. W. and Milford residents. Who fired the fatal shot is a question that members of the I. W. W. are trying to solve. The State police are unconvinced that it was a bullet from the gun of one of the State police that caused the striker's death and members of the town police are as equally reluctant to admit their part in the shooting.

Joseph M. Coldwell, the strike leader, who was arrested on four counts of violating town bylaws, was arraigned today in the district court. The room was crowded with police, officials of the Draper company and members of the I. W. W.

Coldwell was undisturbed as he listened to the reading of the complaint against him. Upon request of his counsel, Alfred B. Genedella and Herbert A. Lake, the case was continued until Monday.

Considerable interest was manifested about town when it was announced from the I. W. W. headquarters that Mirrison I. Swift would arrive in Hopedale tomorrow to give his aid to the strikers. Nothing has been heard from Joseph J. Ettor, the I. W. W. leader, and Elizabeth G. Flynn, who were expected to take a hand in the struggle.

Took a Flyer in Alcohol.

MADRID—The recent abortive transatlantic balloon voyage has had a curious sequel. More than 1,800 tanks were imported into Las Palmas, Canary Islands. Supposedly they contained hydrogen for the balloon; really, clever smugglers had filled them with alcohol. So the customs lost $40,000 in duties.

New White Star Service.

ROCKEFELLER NOW RATED AS BILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, April 25.—For the first time since the Civil War, it became known today that it will be possible, under the proposed income tax, to ascertain with accuracy the wealth of America's famous millionaires. John D. Rockefeller has been credited with a thousand millions, though he has denied that he was worth anywhere near that sum.

The Income Tax law, though, will fix the amount to a penny.

The fact came out in an inquiry made into the accuracy of the table prepared by the Ways and Means Committee at Washington showing the groupings of fortunes in the United States and the estimate of $70,000,000, which it is expected to derive from the income tax.

In this table it is set out that there are 178,000 people in the United States who enjoy an income of between five and ten thousand dollars per year; 35,000 who have between $10,000 and $20,000 per year, and so on up the scale to 350 who have an income of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 and 100 who have an income of over $1,000,000 per year.

At first thought one would believe that in all the rich, prosperous United States there were more than 178,000 persons, for instance, who had an income of from $5,000 to $10,000 per year. In the State of New York last year there were registered alone 95,484 pleasure automobiles and it has been regarded up to now as presumable that an automobile cannot be supported, even when the owner is his own chauffeur, on less than an income of $5,000 or more; and if there are 95,484 persons in New York State with incomes of over $5,000, the Ways and Means estimate of only 178,000 in the whole nation would seem to be too small.

DISPUTE FEDERAL RATE DECISION

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Attorney-General of Minnesota today filed with the Supreme Court of the United States a brief in reply to the governments brief filed this week in connection with the Minnesota rate cases. The Attorney-General of Minnesota contends that the Shreveport case, upon which so much stress was laid in the government's brief does not apply to the questions involved in the Minnesota cases.

'Experts' for Price on Either Side, Says Marshall

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Scientific "experts" sell their services and may be hired to testify on any side of any question, declared Vice-President Marshall in an address at the banquet of the National Academy of Sciences. He said:

"I do not say this to you men, for probably you would not permit yourselves to be retained, or, if you were willing to engage your services, the fees offered would not attract. I refer to your little duplicates, your children. From $50 to $500 will get a man an expert to testify on any side of any question presented to any court in America."

Ambassador Bryce, making his last public appearance in Washington, suggested that a country as rich as the United States might be more liberal with the scientists in its employ.

CROXONE SOON RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses Are Taken

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon, no matter what else may have failed to cure you.

It is a positive fact that the new discovery, Croxone, promptly overcomes such diseases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for ridding the system of uric acid.

It sinks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate, long standing cases.

You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle. All druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time.

GILCHRIST CO

MRS. CHURCHILL UPSET AT TRICK ON FIRST LORD

LONDON, April 25.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, is highly displeased that his misadventure on the Riviera has become known publicly.

These dispatches told exclusively that Mr. Churchill, whose mother Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, of New York, was robbed at Cannes of $2,500 which he had won in a fashionable gambling house there. With it the aristocratic looking thieves stole the First Lord's wallet, which contained important naval data for which any nation not too friendly with Great Britain would gladly pay a high price.

And still worse, perhaps, from Mr. Churchill's point of view, a beautiful young woman was one of the adroit trio who despoiled him. She congratulated Mr. Churchill on his good luck and he chatted gayly with her for a while.

The exclusive dispatch was cabled back here. Naturally, Mrs. Winston Churchill is as little pleased as her husband. Of course course she cares nothing for the loss of the money, although the first lord is far from being wealthy; his salary is $22,500.

But it annoys the charming Mrs. Churchill that her husband, who is devoted to her, should have associated even for a momentary and unwilling period, with a dangerous adventuress.

The Churchills were married five years ago. She is a daughter of the late Sir Henry Montagu Hozier, K. C. B., and a granddaughter of the Earl of Airlie.

Mr. Churchill refused to discuss the affair when the AMERICAN correspondent, visited him today at Cannes. The detectives of Scotland Yard have received the intimation, "Least said, sooner mended," and as it came indirectly from a cabinet officer they are dumb as oysters. They do not hope to recover the First Lord's possession so fleetingly, but diplomatic agents may regain the important papers he lost.

CAPE COD CANAL DONE JUNE 3, 1915

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

Asparagus from the Carolinas and Southern California is coming into the Boston market in ever increasing quantities. As a result of the big shipments, the price has fallen to twenty-five to forty cents a bunch.

Strawberries are also more plentiful and cheaper. Really good berries are selling in Boston for twenty-five cents a box.

Although fresh mackerel are more plentiful, the receipts from Virginia fishing ports increasing from day to day, the price is still high. Bloaters sell for seventy-five cents each and smaller fish for sixty cents. The mackerel fleet should strike the big schools soon and fish dealers say that the price will be cut in two in the near future.

Kale, spinach, dandelions and other greens are in the height of their season just now and fine quality greens of all kinds are selling for twenty cents a peck.

Tomatoes, which have been selling for exorbitant prices during the early spring, are much cheaper. Good tomatoes are offered today at two pounds for a quarter.

Southern grown green peas and string beans are falling in price as the receipts grow larger. Today string beans sell for fifteen cents a quart and peas for $1 a peck.

Spanish and Bermuda onions are in the market. The former sell for five cents a pound and the latter for eight cents.

FREE! Read below to see why this beautiful 6 volume set of Kipling is to be Given Away.

179 Stories and Poems.

Then You Will Realize Why "Life is made up of Sniffles, Smiles and Sobs with Sniffles Predominating". That was the way O. Henry classified the petty human emotions. His kindly sympathy for all alike—the bum, the dandy, the vigorous business man, your little stenographer, or your other friends—his keen observation, and his brilliant genius made him above all others the man who could show vividly the fundamental truths of life. He looked on life much in the attitude of the man with a serious face, but who has a merry twinkle in his eye. In all literature there has been no man who has done more to revive an old gospel—the gospel of brotherly love. Because O. Henry was what he was; because he saw what he saw; because he wrote what he wrote his stories are the ones you want most to read.

Here Is Your Chance to see how the other half lives. Here is your chance to gulp down a sob at some picture of life half hidden in your heart, or to chuckle, snicker, laugh and roar till your ribs crack over a good joke so like that untold one on yourself. Here is your chance to find the keynote of all human lives, a note that is so simple, pure and clear, that it is beautiful in its resonance; to see that the poor social derelict, the girl with the lost femininity, the budding debutante, the patent medicine salesman, are all brothers and sisters of yours, just as if they were of your own blood. Here is your chance to read the big-hearted, kindly philosophy of "The Homer of the Tenderloin," "The Marcus Aurelius of the Gay White Way."

Send No Money—Merely Agree to look at the Books FREE

Last Minute Coupon If Mailed Today Will Bring You the 6-Volume Set of Kipling FREE

WIFE DEFENDS MAN ACCUSED AS BIGAMIST

Mrs. Victor Schonfeld of No. 229 Columbia road, Dorchester, wife of the Boston jeweler who is accused by Mrs. Jennie Marcus of Revere of being the husband she married in Russia forty years ago, today came to the defence of her husband and declared that he is innocent of the Revere's woman's charge. The case is one of a confusion in identities, which may rival even the famous Russell will fight.

The first step in the tangle came when Schonfeld filed a suit for $500 for slander against Mrs. Joseph Burstein of No. 113 Thornton street, Revere, because she had called him "father." Mrs. Burstein is the daughter of Mrs. Marcus. The latter has filed in the Suffolk Probate Court a petition for separate support by Schonfeld. She charges that she married the rich jeweler as Louis Marcus, in Baita, Russia.

Schonfeld's suit for slander grew out of an incident at a social gathering. He claims that Mrs. Burstein stepped up to him and exclaimed: "Heelo, father." Mrs. Burstein said she remembered him, although thirty years had elapsed since she saw him last.

Mrs. Schonfeld was seen in Dorchester today. She said:

"My husband was born in Bucharest, Roumania, fifty-four years ago. He did not come from Russia. We have been married nearly thirty years. He is one of the best men that ever lived. I believe him. I know him to be truthful and honest. His name is Victor Schonfeld and has always been.

"I do not know this other woman at all. I don't believe her story. My husband is entirely innocent and will be proven so."

Schonfeld says a serious mistake has been made and he is determined that his name and that of his family shall be cleared. It was he who brought the first proceedings in court to have the question settled.

New York Baker Is Fined $500 for Using Rotten Eggs

NEW YORK, April 25.—One hundred and twenty pounds of rotten eggs in cans —the familiar liquid eggs, the traffic in which has been exposed in Boston by Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert—have been seized in the factory of the Steel-Drake Company, one of the largest bakeries in the country, Louis Kenert, manager of the company, was fined $500 as result of the seizure of rotten eggs.

At the trial Kenert insisted that there was little chance that the eggs would have been used in cake made by the company. He admitted, however, that the company used in its cake a flavoring extract which would have killed the flavor of decomposed eggs if they were used.

Miss Wilson Says Woman Suffrage Is "Unnecessary"

BALTIMORE, April 25.—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, sounded the keynote of the Congress of Women by declaring that they should take active part in the world's work for social and civic betterment. Addressing the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Miss Wilson said:

Let no plead for women to take an active part in politics. Let them work from a social centre when public questions are concerned and have their opinions heard."

"Do you mean that women should use the suffrage?" she was asked.

"No," was the smiling reply. "It is not necessary, I feel."

Miss Horniman's Players to Give 'The Silver Box'

John Galsworthy's drama, "The Silver Box," which will be given its second Boston performance by Miss Horniman's players at the Plymouth Theatre tonight, was discussed in theatre-going circles today as a play of powerful interest, which will make people think deeply of the problem of rich and poor, even if it does not attempt a solution of the same.

The drama deals with injustice that may be worked upon the "down and out" on account of their lack of means and lack of so-called "respectability." The plot turns upon the theft of a purse and of a silver cigarette box by one Jones, an out-of-work.

DARING WOMEN CRIMINALS — Sophie Lyons in Sunday's AMERICAN Tells of Astonishing Robberies Committed by Her Sex

CARTER BREAKS DOWN; MOTHER VISITS PRISON

The spirit of James Brandon Jennings, the erstwhile "Kid Carter," of fightdom, which has defied law and order since his early youth, was broken today as a result of the visit of his mother to him in the State Prison at Charlestown, where he is serving a life sentence for killing William McPherson.

The prisoner for the first time showed signs of repentance. He recalled his reckless life has laid a blanket of sorrow upon his mother and sister, who must bear the burden of his disgrace.

Carter was reluctant to see his mother at first, but finally consented and, as he stepped into the rotunda the aged woman threw her arms about his neck and sobbed, "My boy, my boy."

Carter tried to be cheerful. But the terrible awakening that the one solace of his life must henceforth be pointed out as the mother of a murderer proved too much for him.

His arrogance vanished and he crumbled into a heap in the chair as his frame shook with sobbing. The little woman, clad in her widow's black, tried to comfort him. She thought of him only as her little boy and made excuses for his wrong doings.

The former pugilist told her there was nothing left for him now and declared he preferred the chair rather than serving the rest of his life in prison.

MISS ALYS MEYER, daughter of former navy secretary, bride tomorrow of Lieutenant Raymond Rodgers, U. S. N.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

Alys Meyer Will Wed Tomorrow in Washington

The marriage of Miss Alys Meyer, daughter of former Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, to Lieutenant Raymond Rogers, U. S. N., in Washington tomorrow will be witnessed by many of her friends from Boston and the North Shore, where she has been popular for years.

The ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, D. D., will take place at St. John's Church. Miss Meyer will be attended by her sister, Julia, as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Helen Taft, Ruth Appleton of New York, Martha McCook of New York, Christine Hunnewell of Boston, Katherine Jennings of Washington, and Dorothy Williams of Washington.

Donald Rodgers will be best man. The ushers will be Alexander Rodgers, Jr., George von L. Meyer, Jr., Lieut. David Bagley, Maj. James A. Logan, Clarence Hay and Sloane Duncanhower.

Miss Meyer, with her sister Julia, has been a social favorite in Washington. Miss Alys is a petite brunette. She is a member of the Vincent Club, and is a skilled horsewoman.

Lieutenant Rodgers is a son of Colonel Alexander Rodgers, U. S. A., retired. For some time he has commanded the navy yacht Sylph, which is detailed for the personal use of the President.

SUSTAIN RULING ON TEXAS RATES

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Commerce court today handed down a decision sustaining an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission prescribing rates from Shreveport, La., to points in the northeast of Texas. The gist of the decision is a broad affirmance of the power of Congress and the authority of the commission to remove a discrimination caused by State rates which are much lower than reasonable interstate rates.

OLD TRAINING SHIP IN FLAMES

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Granite State, training ship for the Naval Reserve, took fire at her berth in the North River at Ninety-seventh street early today. Firemen were soon at work, but the fire got such a good start that they could not make much headway on the flames. The Granite State was once the frigate New Hampshire and was in the war of 1812. Several men escaped the flames by jumping overboard.

Giving the People What They Pay For—And a Little More

This is what makes and keeps this so busy a store. We never try to see how little we can give—we always give the most that can be given at a price and throw Legal Stamps and Free Alterations in as running over measure.

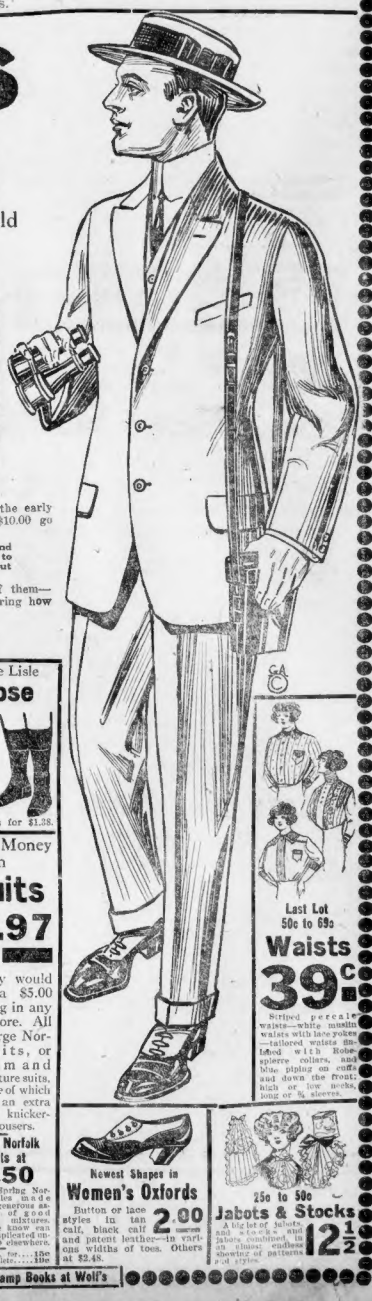
We're not here simply to get by. We want the confidence of the people we sell to—and when we make it a fixed condition that every piece of merchandise that goes out of this store, goes with the expressed understanding that you can get "Your money back if you want it," we're bound to win and hold that confidence—as we have done.

We've been carrying out these principles for over thirty years—and hope to keep on carrying them out for another thirty years.

Men's Suits

The Equal of Which You Would Pay $15 for Elsewhere

$10



Mr. Wolf and the men's clothing buyer were in New York the early part of this week, and the suits they picked out to sell for $10.00 go ahead of anything we've ever offered at this price.

Why, there are suits in the lot that we know would command $15.00 elsewhere—but you see we've got a high reputation to live up to—and we are determined not only to live up to it, but to go it one better each year.

New colorings, new patterns, new style effects—dozens of them—and each one so strikingly handsome as to set you to wondering how they can be made to sell at so popular a price as $10.00.

WAR VETERAN, 72, WEDS NIECE OF FIRST WIFE

Friends of Former Lieutenant George F. Dearborn of the Brookline Police Department, seventy-two, and Miss Mary F. Jennings, forty-three, of Sparrow street, West Roxbury, a niece of Mr. Dearborn's first wife, were surprised today to learn they had been secretly married by the Rev. L. H. Bugbee of Malden, a friend of the groom.

Friends of the groom declare him to be "the youngest looking man in Brookline." While they had known of the romance, they had not expected the marriage at this time.

Wedding plans had really been under way for some time, but the couple were successful in keeping their intention secret. Early last evening they slipped quietly away from Brookline and were married at the home of a friend by Dr. Bugbee, pastor of the Central Methodist Church of Malden, who was formerly pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, the latter being the church Mr. Dearborn and his bride attend.

Mrs. Dearborn is the daughter of Kister Jennings, who was of Halifax, N. S. Mr. Dearborn and his bride are widely known among the parishioners of St. Mark's Church.

Mr. Dearborn, who lives at No. 125 Park street, Brookline, retired from the police department on half pay in May, 1905.

During the Civil War Mr. Dearborn served as a trumpeter in the Eleventh Massachusetts Battery.

DOCTOR SUED FOR DEATH OF WOMAN BY DRUG

Trial was begun today in the Superior Court of the suit of Nicholas Tomeo, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Mary Mucci of Cambridge, against Dr. Eugene E. Everett of No. 427 Marlboro street, for $15,000 for alleged negligence in directing the administering of chloroform to her while the doctor was performing the operation.

The woman died a few minutes after the anaesthetic was administered to her by her brother-in-law, Antonio Ruggero, a barber, under the alleged direction of the defendant.

According to Joseph P. Walsh, in his opening argument to the jury, Dr. Everett insisted that the brother-in-law of the patient administer the chloroform, despite the objections of her husband, Alfred Mucci and herself. She was twenty-two years old. Her parents requested the presence of another physician to administer the anaesthetic, but the doctor objected, said counsel. While the chloroform was being administered counsel said the brother-in-law remarked that the woman was "turning blue and choking."

A $60 Suit Purchased from——& Co., 5th Ave., New York tailors. Duplicated by Ritchie & Cornell for $14.75

Here is Our Challenge: If You Can Duplicate the Suit We Make for $14.75 for Less Than $60.00 We Will Refund Your Money.

The illustration at left shows a Ritchie & Cornell exact reproduction of a $60 suit we purchased from——& Co., 5th ave., N. Y., tailors. Study the illustration closely, as it speaks volumes for our $40 to $60 values at $14.75.

There is no secret about this—the answer is: Volume of business. We sell from 1,000 to 2,000 suits every week, on which we make $1 profit on a suit, or $1,000 to $2,000 profit a week. If the average custom tailor makes a suit at $40—his profit is $25.25 on each suit—he makes a larger profit than we, but no better suit; in short, if we are satisfied with a profit of $1, you ought to be satisfied with a saving of $25.25.

When you visit our big store, you will find the choicest collection of new Spring woolens. Every shade and pattern obtainable—the famous Shamrock Serge No. 5019; Blues, Blacks, Browns, Blue Pencil Stripes of varying widths; Drummond & Standish Worsteds, English Cassimeres, Harris Tweeds, hard and soft finished Donegals, Irish Homespuns—every yard worth $3 to $4. Other tailors never sell such materials in suits to order for less than $40. They go at this sale, made to order, at $14.75.

Washington Boy Plays Ball with New Grafted Arm

HOW La Foue Raymond, a Washington boy, had a new hand made out of a piece of his back.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—La Foue Raymond, of No. 1224 Euclid avenue, who has a new hand made from a part of his back, was able to play ball today. Little more than a month ago the hand was a crippled mass of bones and tendons. The operation was performed by Dr. Robert H. M. Dawbers, of No. 105 West Seventy-fourth street, New York.

Raymond, who is now twenty-two years old, injured his hand in a fire when he was a child. Dr. Dawburn took a strip of flesh from the patient's back and grafted it where the palm of the hand had been a shriveled scar.

$33,459.74 FOR WELLESLEY HALL

According to the report made to the student body at Wellesley College by Miss Alice C. Fisher, a fund which undergraduate girls and alumnae are raising so that they may erect a student-alumnae building costing between $100,000 and $150,000, has reached $33,459.74.

MUNSTERBERG CHALLENGED ON X-RAY GIRL

Dr. John H. Quackenbos, the Manhattan hypnotist, psychologist and former Columbia College professor, says that Professor Hugo Munsterberg, the eminent Harvard authority on psychology, has taken an unfair and undignified attitude in denying an "X-ray" mind or clairvoyant powers to ten-year-old Beulah Miller of Warren, R. I.

Pending the departure of the little Rhode Island girl to New York city to be tested by the Metropolitan Psychic Society, which has offered her $500 to duplicate phenomena she is alleged to have shown, the controversy over the child's powers is growing wider and more pronounced.

Beulah Miller, who was brought to public attention a few weeks ago by the Sunday AMERICAN, was tested in New York by Dr. Quackenbos. He said of her:

"Here is a true case of X-ray vision and is remarkable in many ways."

Meanwhile Professor Munsterberg had tested the child. He has just published his views. He admits Beulah has psychic powers, but denies she is a clairvoyant of considerable. Professor Munsterberg said that Beulah succeeded best when some relative was present, then hinted that a simple system of "mind-reading" signs would be sufficient to communicate everything she had shown.

Dr. Quackenbos says that when Professor Munsterberg discards all tests he did not personally see the professor hastily make a frank confession, yet test. Because Beulah not possess power to describe objects neither she nor anyone else has seen, but simply that Dr. Munsterberg has not seen her do so.

Dr. Quackenbos says Professor Munsterberg "robs the child of X-ray vision," which has been conceded to her by eminent persons.

Regarding the use of "unintended signs," Dr. Quackenbos recites tests to which he and a New York reporter and witnesses put Beulah and expresses the hope that more tests can be made of the child.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB PUT OUT ON BANK STEPS

CARDIFF, Wales, April 25.—Militant suffragists are now spreading terror throughout Wales. Early today the police found a bomb on the doorstep of Lloyd's bank in Albany road just in time to extinguish the fuse and prevent the building from being destroyed.

Upon the infernal machine was printed "Votes for Women." On the other side were the letters R I P, which is supposed to represent the initials of the phrase, "Requiescat in Pace" ("Rest in Peace").

The bomb had been rudely constructed of a large tin canister, filled with gunpowder and another explosive which the police are having analyzed. On top of the powder was a wad of cotton waste saturated with oil. A long, slow burning fuse was connected with the oil soaked cotton.

The attention of a constable was attracted by the sputtering fuse and he extinguished it.

The police declare there was enough explosive in the canister to wreck the building.

The theory is that the women were sent here from London to commit outrages throughout Wales.

WANAMAKER FOR PARIS EMBASSY?

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Pennsylvania politicians in Washington discussed with interest a report that President Wilson would be asked to appoint Rodman Wanamaker of Philadelphia, son of John Wanamaker, as Ambassador to France. Mr. Wanamaker is said to have been first suggested for that post by Representative Difenderfer.

More About Standard Brands of Men's Clothing

N. SALLINGER,
Originator of the Famous Order Check which enables men and women to obtain Credit at their favorite stores for the Cash Bargain Prices, and PAY $1.00 A WEEK.

A designer of a Standard Brand of clothing not only decrees the fashion of the cut of the garments, but he, in many cases, designs the weave of the cloth, also the color. Some of the best of the Standard Brands go so far in the matter of style that they have what is known to the trade as "Confined Patterns"; that is, some particular weaves and colors are not distributed over the country indiscriminately, only a few suits or coats of a certain weave or color are sent to each city and confined to one or two of the best clothing retailers. Because of its high-salaried designer, a Standard Brand of clothing is not necessarily a high-priced brand. A low-priced or medium-priced brand of clothing can be and is standardized because OF its high-priced designer and, price considered, its uniform and dependable Standard character and value. BESIDES OTHER MEDIUM AND HIGH-PRICED STANDARD BRANDS, N. Sallinger sells on credit a Standard Brand that retails for $15 a suit. It is made by a house that pays its designer $15,000 a year. This same designer fashions their higher-priced Standard Brands and the expression of his art shows in the lines of the $15 suit as well as in the $50 suit. The difference exists in the quality of cloth and workmanship. A man should never buy anything in ready-tailored clothing outside of the Standard Brands.

You live in your clothes so much of the time that there's only one kind of apparel you ought to consider seriously. That's the kind that feels comfortable because it fits properly—looks distinctive because of the quality of its style—and wears well because it possesses service-giving quality and workmanship.

Morse-Made Suits at $15, $20 & $25

are most emphatically "that kind" of clothes. We have better grades at $30, $35 and $38, that give you simply the finest fabrics obtainable, but these suits at $15, $20 and $25 represent the backbone of our business, because the values at the prices are so much better than you're accustomed to. BOYCOTT IN HOMES BY SUFFRAGETTES LATEST PLAN URGED

LONDON, April 25.—"A burned dinner has far more value for convincing Englishmen that something is wrong than merely a burned villa," says a letter from Frau Duerrin, a prominent German suffragist of Nuremberg, advising the British militants to adopt the "household boycott," which was made public today by the Women's Social and Political Union.

"The 'household boycott' means refusal by the women to perform household duties," Frau Duerrin explained. "You English women should drop militancy and adopt this plan. It would be far more effective. I would even neglect the children and make the men dress them."

TWO DEMOCRATS AND SEVENTEEN REPUBLICANS VOTED AGAINST THE BILL AND AGAINST EVERY CONSUMER EVERY HONEST PRODUCER AND BUTTER OR MILK, AND EVERY HONEST FOOD MERCHANT IN THE STATE.

NINE DEMOCRATS AND NINE REPUBLICANS VOTED IN FAVOR OF THE BILL AND IN SUPPORT OF THE RIGHTS OF THE PRODUCER, THE RETAILER AND THE CONSUMER.

Bill Is Praised.

I have not space enough to quote the speeches of those in favor and opposed to the bill. Senator Ward opened the debate, speaking for the bill, and presented the issues squarely.

Senator Montague spoke against the bill, and though a lawyer advanced the PREPOSTEROUS doctrine that the Federal government can and does regulate the manufacture of butter made in Massachusetts, to be SOLD in Massachusetts. Senator Fisher, favoring the bill, exposed the ABSURDITY of Senator Montague's position. Senator Clark showed that the Federal government cannot protect Massachusetts citizens from cheats in the butter business and that THIS LAW WOULD PROTECT Massachusetts folk. Senator Fay closed the arguments against the bill.

But the significant feature of the day was Governor Foss' successful attempt to kill a bill that would result only in good to the honest consumer, the honest producer and the honest seller.

George M. Harlow, representing the DEMOCRATIC Governor, persuaded the REPUBLICANS in the Senate to KILL THIS BILL.

Deserved to Pass.

The bill deserved to pass and would have passed but for the interference of the Governor.

The Massachusetts constitution provides that THE EXECUTIVE SHALL NOT INTERFERE IN THE WORK OF THE TWO LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

George M. Harlow, the Governor's secretary, DID SO INTERFERE YESTERDAY, and secured the defeat of this bill.

You who believe this bill should be passed and who believe that its passage would have helped you—LAY THE BLAME FOR ITS DEFEAT AT THE DOOR OF GOVERNOR FOSS AND OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

THE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS DID THEIR BEST TO PASS THE BILL.

PRIESTS FORBIDDEN TO RIDE IN AUTOS

BERLIN, April 25.—Roman Catholic clergymen are forbidden to either own or ride in automobiles, according to an edict published today in the Rhenish Prussian bishopric of Treves. The head of the diocese declares that the use of automobiles is inconsistent with the humility which should adorn the clergy and, furthermore, automobiling has been the frequent cause of the financial embarrassment of priests.

Silk Hat Hurley Will Be Fire Hero in Moving Pictures

The "movies" have landed Mayor John F. Hurley of Salem where vaudeville failed.

The Mayor—and he sick hat, too—are to be heroes in a moving picture fire at Salem Monday morning.

The United States Motion Picture Company, which have been taking pictures around Salem, made arrangements with the Mayor today to set his house on fire Monday, use him as a hero and then rescue him for a final "thriller."

The Hurley house at No. 12 Dow street will be "fired" in a moving picture fashion, with plenty of chemical smoke, but no real flame.

Briggs Denies "Repudiation" of Atty. Brandeis

"We have not used the word 'repudiation' in connect on with our relations with Mr. Brandeis," said Secretary A. E. Briggs of the Boston Fruit Exchange when seen at his office today by a reporter of the Boston AMERICAN. "The first I knew of that word being used was when it appeared in nearly all the newspapers. It strikes me that there is a considerable flurry being made over the affair, which is really of small importance.

"Are your relations with Mr. Brandeis still friendly?" Mr. Briggs was asked.

"They are, so far as I know. We sent him a very friendly letter, which he is at liberty to make public. I have absolutely nothing more to make public than was given out in the official statement which appeared in the AMERICAN this morning."

Jury Gives Girl $925 in Breach-of-Promise Case

A jury in the Suffolk County Court today gave Miss Johanna Maier of No. 610 Tremont street $925 to soothe her aching heart for being jilted by Eugene Giaquinta, a Brockton barber who, she claims, broke off his engagement with her because he was going to move out of Suffolk County.

The trial opened yesterday. Miss Maier told the court that she met her suitor in April, 1911, when he was residing in this city. He gave her a diamond ring and borrowed money from her, she said. He also took her to visit his relatives after their engagement and accompanied her when she went to the shops to try on hats.

City Hall Ban on Smoking Ignored by Acting Mayor

Acting Mayor Thomas J. Kenny abandoned the policy of a smokeless administration which has been in effect at City Hall for the past three years. The blanket of the temporary chief executive on his arrival at the Mayor's office today was to open a box of perfecto and the inner office was soon permeated with the aroma of the choice Havanas.

Mayor Fitzgerald does not smoke and visitors to the inner office are expected to refrain from the weed.

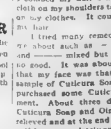
"HONESTY" WILL BE PURE FOOD TEST

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Enforcement of the pure food law henceforth will be solely to see that the provisions of the law are strictly obeyed, while at the same time no attempt will be made to punish manufacturers and importers who can show that they are honestly trying to live up to the spirit of the statute, according to officials of the Department of Agriculture.

HAIR FELL OUT BY THE HANDFUL

Face Broke Out With Pimples. Always Itching. Scalp Itched and Burned. Head Full of Dandruff. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Both Troubles.

46 Cold Spring St., Woonsocket, R. I.—"My face broke out with pimples which looked like little sores from scratching all the time. It itched so much that it was hard to keep my hands from my face. After a while my face grew worse and it was always itching. My scalp itched and burned greatly. My hair fell out by the combful and was lifeless. My head was full of dandruff and when I combed my hair I had to put a piece of cloth on my shoulders to keep it from getting on my clothes. It could be seen plainly in my hair.



I tried many remedies that people told me about such as [illegible] and [illegible] mixed but they did me little or no good. It was about a year and a half that my face was that way when I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. About three days after using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I was greatly relieved and at the end of two months and a half I was completely cured of both troubles." ROMANCE AT COLLEGE TOLD IN "BABY" VOTE

A "baby" vote taken by the members of the class of 1911 of William's College brought to light today the romantic story of the elopement and secret wedding of William Vanderbilt Dolph, formerly a Boston real estate man and a Williams graduate, to Miss Catherine Cleary, a pretty Portland, Ore., girl.

The marriage occurred three years ago while Dolph was a Williams student and his secret bride was attending an exclusive college for girls on the Hudson River. The first word of the romance reached of his romance came in letters from the class officers telling them a son has been born to Dolph. The Dolph baby is the first son to be born to any member of the class, which puts Dolph in line for the silver cup to be awarded to the first father in the class to whom the stork brings a baby boy.

The class officers were unable to decide whether the cup should go to Dolph, as he was married while in college. By their "baby" vote, which is being taken by mail, Dolph's fellow graduates are to decide whether or not he is eligible to receive the cup. The understanding in the class had always been that the marriage must follow graduation.

The Dolphs are now living in Portland, Ore., where the young husband and father is in the real estate business. The couple were wedded in New York, but it was months before they even announced the fact to their parents.

Williams College alumni of the class of 1911 revealed today that in a "joke" ballot taken and recorded in the class history Dolph got the highest number of votes as the "prospective first father of a boy." The alumni say Dolph is practically certain to win the silver cup donated by the class of 1911.

'DEAD' BABY COMES TO LIFE; RELATIVE KILLED BY SHOCK

BUTTE, Cal., April 25.—Grouped about the coffin of Mrs. John E. Burney's three-year old son, members of the family and relatives were listening to the funeral services when the child, called to its shroud, sat up and gazed at its grandmother. The aged woman stared at the child a moment and then sank into a chair dead. The child died a few hours later. Double services were held.

Bartholdt Gets After Mr. Bryan on "Drinks at Dinner"

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Congressman Bartholdt of Missouri, who for years has led a campaign to restore the canteen in the army, today said that no host, particularly a Secretary of State, had a right to tell his guests whether they could take a drink or not.

"I deeply regret that the question of whether a man shall take a drink of wine with his dinner should have become a state question," he said. "It is a matter all gentlemen should decide for themselves. Why, it's hospitality with a string tied to it, and that's not the American way. Mr. Bryan is forcing his personal views on officials whom he is electioneering as Secretary of State.

"Drinking is improper. No host should force his private opinions on his guests, especially when it makes for their discomfort. The foreign diplomats, of course are not in a position to criticise, but I'll bet they had some peculiar thoughts. They come from a station in life where gentlemen may take a glass of wine with their dinner."

FREE 2, HOLD ANOTHER FOR FARM TRAGEDY

Joseph Gall, who was arrested in connection with the death of Charles Offley, the Burlington farmer who was found dead Thursday with two bullet holes in his body, was arraigned today on the charge of manslaughter before Judge Johnson in the Woburn District Court. He was held without bail for further hearing on May 12.

It was said that Judge Johnson would immediately issue a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Joseph McClay and William Farrell, who after pending not guilty to the charge of murdering O'Brien were held without bail until May 1. The men were released at noon today.

Gall, who is twenty-two years old, is an Italian and unable to speak English.

German Authorities Come Forward with a Startling Statement

Drs. Rebmann and Seiler Are Unanimous in Stating the Commonest Ailment There Is Today Is Nervous Debility—Tona Vita, the New Tonic, Is the Only Thing That Has Relieved This Complaint Outside of a Long Stay in Some Health Resort on a Careful Diet.

It is extremely important that great care be taken to prevent increased activity of the brain and secure the right proportion between work and rest. Drs. Rebmann and Seiler, the well-known German authorities on up-to-date hygiene and health, state that nervous debility of the brain is the commonest ailment of our day. They attribute the principal cause to overexertion, violent emotions, troubles, passion, abuse of the stomach, shocks and the modern mode of living.

The symptoms of this trouble are very general, owing to the fact that the nervous system completely controls every organ, muscle and cell of the human body.

Tona Vita, which is relieving so many cases of nervous debility, can be purchased everywhere and is the only relief for this ailment outside of long rest with careful attention to hours and diet.

The wide-spread nature of nervous debility can be seen by the different symptoms that sufferers have laid claim to, among others: constant headaches, sleep that is broken and restless, constant sense of depression, pains in the back, loss of appetite and weight, or a general run-down feeling.

FINAL!

Every Remaining Hilton Suit and Overcoat of Fall NOW $12

They Were Formerly $40, $35, $30, $28, $25, $22.50, $20 and $18

Beginning tomorrow, every remaining Overcoat and Suit of Fall will be placed on sale at $12. This is the most sensational announcement that has invaded a newspaper column in Boston in a year. When $12 will do the service that $40, $35, $30, $25, $20 or $18 did earlier in the season, it's an opportunity that no prudent clothes-buyer can afford to overlook. If you want to take advantage of it, act tomorrow.

Many of these suits may be worn during all of Spring and again next Fall.

CHARGES GIRLS BLACKMAILED MILLIONAIRES

LOS ANGELES, April 25.—Instead of there being a ring of millionaires preying upon young girls, A. G. Fleming, former city prosecutor, declares there is a ring of conscienceless girls and women systematically preying upon helpless men of wealth in this city, in his testimony before the Grand Jury on a white slavery case.

"This Grand Jury investigation will be a welcome relief to scores of men in and about Los Angeles," he declared.

The investigation has already resulted in the issuance of a bench warrant for George H. Dixby, the missing Long Beach millionaire.

According to Fleming, the millionaire known as "The Black Pearl," and others who were "good fellows" while spending an occasional pleasant evening at cafes, were singled out by girls working under the direction of a "brainy woman," and forced to pay blackmail or face the possibility of broken homes.

On the other hand, the police assert that Mrs. Jose Rosenberg, who conducted the Joan-ill resort, was merely one of a white slaving corps which worked for a number of well known men about town.

Fleming's photograph is said by the police to have been found in Mrs. Rosenberg's safe.

Right Selling as Important as Right Style and Quality

Being well dressed is not a matter of price but of getting correct fit and appropriate style, both of which depend largely upon the salesman and the stock at his disposal.

We know—because it's our business to—what model and pattern will look best on a man, and with our tremendous stock, wide range of sizes and vast variety of styles we can render far better service in this respect than any other store in New England.

We do not insist. You may buy whatever you like. But if you're not quite decided, you may feel perfectly safe in taking our advice, knowing that we will make right anything that doesn't prove right. Our guarantee of complete and lasting satisfaction takes care of that.

This right selling—this extra care and attention—has helped us in building up the largest men's clothing business in New England. It adds fully as much to the customers' satisfaction as does our greater value-giving.

Kuppenheimer Clothes

Correct style and fine quality are only two of the many good points about these famous garments. They are made in such a wide variety of patterns and models that any taste can be perfectly suited, and any figure perfectly fitted. No smaller maker can afford to make so many models—no smaller store can afford to carry so many.

The good style and fit of Kuppenheimer Suits are permanent features—they are built in by careful hand tailoring. As the suit fits you in the store, so will it continue to fit to the very last day of wear. There's nothing transient about the good looks of these clothes or the satisfaction they give. Doubly guaranteed—by the maker and us.

$18 $20 $22.50 $25 $27.50 to $35

Here's Big Value
In these suits at low prices we show every style and pattern in vogue this season—guarantee satisfaction and demonstrate our greater value-giving beyond any question. They're $3 to $5 better than you can find elsewhere at

BEGINS TERM GIVEN FOR GIRL'S SLAVERY STORY

John W Dale of Oak street, South End, today began a sentence of two and a half years in the House of Correction as the result of the story recited to a jury before Judge Brown in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court by Emma Benson, an all-tellers gowned brunette.

Miss Benson told of coming to Boston and meeting Dale on Washington's Birth day in 1910. After the first meeting she said he took her home. Then his persistency over-ran was complete. He forced her to support him, and when her wages did not turn over all her earnings to him.

In Lagrange street officers found her suffering acutely from a beating she said Dale had given her, and his arrest followed.

CYCLOPEDIAS ARE READY FOR YOU TODAY

Now comes the distribution day of the Boston AMERICAN'S great book bargain. Coupons will be redeemed today at any of the branch offices shown in the coupon printed on another page of this issue.

Everywhere the people are overwhelming reference work containing a mass of information on all subjects. It is convenient size, easy to handle and complete. No school boy and girl, no man and woman can afford to miss the opportunity of getting it at the bargain price offered today and tomorrow.

For these two days the complete set of five volumes will be given to readers of the AMERICAN for $1.98 and one coupon. The regular selling price of this five-volume set is $12.

Millions of dollars are spent to put thing out expensive sets that sell on the installment plan all the way from $50 to $100 each. Everybody's Encyclopedia is a compilation of all the useful information contained in the large cumbersome sets, but it is carefully boiled down to meet the needs of all. Now require a complete, accurate and authoritative reference work.

This offer is the result of the largest book order ever placed with a publisher of readers are now given the benefit of it. The AMERICAN guarantees to [illegible] and the amount paid be any reader, who finds Everybody's Encyclopedia in any [illegible] satisfactory and unreasonable.

The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out of town readers may get them for $1.98, the sets to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver.

Newton Catholic Club to Entertain Walsh and Donahue

A reception will be tendered tomorrow evening to Lieutenant Governor-elect David I Walsh and Secretary of State Frank J Donahue by the members of the Newton Catholic Club in the Armory of Company C, Fifth Regiment, M V M, in West Newton. Among the invited guests are Major Charles E Hatfield, Congressman-elect John J Mitchell, members of the Newton City Government and many of the Catholic clergy from all parts of Greater Boston.

Following the reception there will be dancing. Joseph J Curran, chairman of the committee, and Mrs Curran will lead the grand march. It is expected that fully 500 will attend.

Arrangements for the affair were left in the hands of a large committee, which was assisted by many of the members of the club, among whom Mrs [illegible] Miss Frances M Cahill have charge of the refreshment table.

INDICT FOUR I. W. W. LEADERS IN NEW JERSEY

The Grand Jury of Passaic County, New Jersey, has indicted for unlawful assemblage Tarn Tresca, Patrick Quinlan, Joseph Lasse and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, as a result of the strike in the silk mills. None has been arrested. Some of them were conspicuous in Lawrence during the recent strike there.

Mayor McBride of Paterson yesterday issued a statement protesting against the exploitation of the strikers' cause by persons who wish to send them away. He says he is glad to see that all the children are properly fed and says he has received offers of assistance from trained nurses.

Three hundred children formed a picturesque group in front of Paterson City Hall yesterday and then marched and wanted to take train to New York. But the police who met Mrs. William B Smith, wife of a striker, [illegible] discovered and denied the safe exit of the children.

"Make a Boy Work," Advises Dr. Dyer on Training Youth

"The modern father has turned training of the boy over to the mother and she in turn has passed the problem over to the school. The thing which is most needed today is a closer union between the school and the home," declared Dr. Franklin B. Dyer, superintendent of schools, speaking before the Longfellow Home and School Association in the Longfellow School, Roslindale.

"There is no healthier training for a boy than to grub in the earth," he said. "Give him work to do around the home and thus instil in him the elements of what are now called old-fashioned virtues. Make him feel that he is an important factor in the family. Every thing is possible for the child who has the right sort of parents."

Man From Revere Complains He Can't Get Enough Water

(WATER—A pitcher or jug for carrying water—Webster's Dict.)

Showing how little there really is in a name, Miss Juliet Capuzzi late of Verona, Italy, was wont to remark, in the case of George A. Ewer of Winthrop.

Mr. Ewer's last name, according to the dictionary signifies a receptacle for carrying water.

But Mr. Ewer complains he can't get enough water. He states the water turned on at his house on Walnut avenue, Revere, the Revere water commissioners grant it when Mr. Ewer refused to pay a water bill.

Mr. Ewer says the bill was too big. He asks the Supreme Judicial Court to compel the water commissioners to give him water.

MRS. BRUCE FACES DEBTOR COURT OVER LOVE SUIT AWARD

Mrs. Lina Bruce, wife of the Boston painting contractor, W. A. Bruce, will appear in the Poor Debtor's Court to-morrow to show why she should not pay the $500 awarded Mrs. Rachel Harrimal in her suit against Mrs. Bruce for alienation of the affections of her husband, Philip Harrison.

The $500 in question was agreed upon by an "agreement of judgment" between counsel for Mrs. Bruce, filed April 8, 1912.

ANOTHER CHAPTER OF BRANDEIS'S RECORD

The campaign which Louis D. Brandeis is now conducting against the financial standing of the New Haven Road, like that which he conducted in 1908, is based upon a manipulation of figures and accounts intended to deceive and mislead.

In December, 1907, shortly before the meeting of the Legislature, he printed and sent broadcast a pamphlet purporting to present the financial condition of the New Haven Road and the Boston & Maine Road.

Of the Brandeis pamphlet the Chairman of the Commission of Commerce and Industry, appointed by Governor Guild, said at a hearing before the Legislative Committee on Railroads, May 19, 1908:

> "Many things appear in this report (Mr. Brandeis's) * * * which are astounding. The report has undergone the scrutiny of those very keen gentlemen who manage the financial part of the newspaper press. It has been before the financial world * * *. I have not yet heard that this report (Mr. Brandeis's) has met the approval or acceptance of any competent railroad authority anywhere. It has been reviewed with the greatest severity in the financial papers. Its errors, or what were asserted to be errors, glaring errors, have been pointed out * * *.
>  * * "It is easy to see its purpose * * *. The grand conclusion put in italics is this,—'A large reduction in the dividend rate of the New York and New Haven is inevitable.' What does that mean put out in the month of December, 1907, and January, 1908; that assertion about one of the leading railroads of the country, in which so much New England capital is invested? What does it mean to say to investors on a panicky market,—'A large reduction in the dividend rate is inevitable'? Is that done with the purpose to assist the Legislature in reaching a candid, cautious and sound conclusion regarding the financial condition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, or is it done for some other purpose? * * * As it is correct or incorrect, considering the spirit in which it was put forth, so the spirit is public, or it is bitter and vindictive and private."

That his pamphlet exploiting the finances of the New Haven and Boston & Maine Roads in 1908 was completely discredited and shown to be replete with errors and false conclusions is sufficient assurance that his present accusations will not bear analysis, nor deserve credit.

As his mathematics were exploded then, so they will be now.

But Who Is Paying Brandeis?

Brandeis claims he is employed by the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange.

Here is what they say:

BRANDEIS REPUDIATED.

(From the Boston News Bureau, April 24, 1913.)

Secretary Briggs of the Fruit & Produce Exchange says regarding the unanimous vote of directors this morning repudiating Mr. Brandeis: "Mr. Brandeis was engaged as counsel by the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange to act in the matter of unsatisfactory freight service, the date of such engagement being in the early Summer of 1912. We do not understand that Mr. Brandeis is now in the service of the Exchange."

A letter is to be sent to Brandeis by the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange expressing appreciation to the attorney for past services but stating in a courteous way that it is not the understanding of the members of the Exchange that Mr. Brandeis is still in their service.

D. F. Littlefield, one of the oldest produce merchants in the Exchange, says: "In self-defence the Exchange was compelled to take the action which it has. Mr. Brandeis's claim to represent us is a piece of unmitigated effrontery.

"The manner in which Brandeis built up his claim to represent the Exchange was about as follows: A year ago the Exchange received a considerable number of claims and protests concerning poor railroad service. These claims piled up after the hard Winter of 1911-12, which authorities generally admit was the hardest railroad year in a generation. At the time this matter came up Mr. Brandeis offered his services gratis to the Exchange and directors accepted them for this specific work, without in any way giving him authority to represent the Exchange in any but these particular cases. Now a year later he bobs up as our gratuitous advocate.

"The Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange is a representative body of earnest business men. We deplore the notoriety which we have secured in this investigation. It has been forced upon us by methods with which we are not familiar and now that we have repudiated it, I hope that the public will come to see the situation in its true light."

Who is the Corbin in this case?

FRESNO DAN, 'USED LIKE FOOL KID,' TO DEMAND ESTATE FROM COURTS

Brother Willie has hardly cracked a smile since I joined him. He seems to be in a perpetual trance.

The money given me in the last three years is about $2,000.

I have been used like a fool kid.

Ferdinand R. Almy has been drawing $50 a week for giving his attention to the case.

I often think some persons close to my brother are not particularly mixed Dumbell Hinke Russell returned. — Fresno Dan Russell

"I'm going to find out who Fresno Dan is and what he has to say about me. I never heard of him before. I was a friend of my brother's in abandoning the case of Mrs. Russell's 2 years, while some persons have claimed that prince or chief dictated to the courts his wish. . . . Russell, for the sake of the children, is trying to maintain the dignity of the family name in the case. The welfare of the little boys is especially considered.

"I wish I was as sure of my self as I once was. I could drive a motor car like Fresno Dan can and look like real money. And I also know a lot of other things.

"Because I am the real man, I would say as a youth I've had nothing coming to me that looks like a million dollars. Brother Willie seems to fill the role of a wooden Indian.

"Heavy expenditures at the time don't give him a thought. Attorney Nelson gets $100 a day for his services. I've only received $2,000 in three years. Sometimes I'm sorry I showed up. I've been treated like an outcast.

Nearly all the property owned by the Russell estate has been mortgaged to meet the expenses of the court proceedings.

Anybody who desires to win fame can do so by telling me just what money, if any, will be left after all this court wrangling and other costly activities.

Side features have been met that.

It is possible still another court fight may be entered on after this is settled. Dakota Dan may take further proceedings. I have been told that in anticipation of such a move $50,000 has been set aside from the estate to meet court expenses.

For three years I have been hanging around Melrose and Boston. What have I been getting? Not enough to provide a man with meals in a hash house. By RILEY.

A NURSERY RHYME BROUGHT UP TO THE NINTH INNING.

There was a man in our town
and he was wond'rous wise,
He bet his pile in early spring
on Stahl to cop the prize.
But when he saw Boo Ainslie's
Sox play with all his might
and main,
He rustled around and hedged
his bets on Mack to win again.

Or Bill Carrigan?

"PREXY" WILSON'S presence clamped the lid on the Sox up to the ninth night in Washington, but the Red Pie President's absence from the box for the next game failed to bring the locals any luck. The instant he was not present he vanished from the ball park and cut short a record four runs and won the ball game.

IT'S a 1,000,000 to 1 shot that the President had a faint feeling about the heart when he read today's papers. Another million to one bet that when he had struck it out. An still another million to one wise on our own part that he'd keep from the ball games hereafter while the Sox are in Washington. Talk about being inspired by the scores, by spelling. When he is said when he is not among those present.

STAHL still insists that his ears, not his batting eye, are keeping him away from first base. It does make a fellow shaky in the knees at that, when he calls for a "Strike three" Batters don't fight out loud before 20 thousand fans," more or less.

WHEN Jake Stahl struck out for the ninth consecutive time in the Pirate series at Hot Springs, and the crowd roared in derision, just a faint notion of what MIGHT happen on a major league park—just a vague vision of "Ping" Bodie, the mighty fence "buster," and his customary reception at Fenway—must have flitted across Jake's thought factory.

"WHY, that's what drove ME out of baseball," said Fred Clarke, as he shuddered on the sidelines. "Shut Never again, for mine," added the Pirate boss. "Not for seventeen hundred thousand dollars will you ever catch me again with a baseball bat. The little coaching line and the bench for mine. You can throw a little ball in the think of you, but you can't hit it hitting. When you walk up to the plate with a bat in your hand in a pitch you're holding down the cop job in the world that you can't get away with with out delivering the goods."

"AND THAT'S baseball" muttered Umpire Billy Evans, shudder ing at the uproar, as he remembered many a decision he had made against the home team.

THE Phillies made another run yesterday. In eight games they have now scored a total of twelve tallies. Yet they have won four tied our and lost just three. In fact and the Pilgrims need almost that many runs to win some of their single games nowadays.

TWELVE scores in twenty-six innings for the "runless wonders"! That is an average of one run every 6 1-3 innings—less than a run and a half per game. Yet they laughed at Stallings when he said that the Quakers were one of the parties he expected to pass this year. It is a great tribute to Dooin's pitchers, particularly Seaton, that he should get away with four games hooted by that kind of offense.

SPEAKING of the Quakers, a "bug" asked us today, why it was not the Harvard "champs" that beat Colgate, it is not proper to say that famous Wolfe's name in the fifth row? If the Wolfe-pit's don't care, go ahead, but don't try too much of that stuff in Boston.

EDDIE CICOTTE is happy. He has found his jinx again. The White Sox ace earned his 19th victory yesterday and lost, 3 to 1. Yes, and 'twas the Browns that did it.

DENY ZIMMERMAN IS OUT OF GAME

PITTSBURGH, April 25.—Reports that Zimmerman, Chicago's third baseman, had injured his heel and would be out of the game for some time, were denied here by Manager Evers. "There is no truth in the reports," said Evers. "The line-up today will remain unchanged."

CY YOUNG SIGNS WITH OUTLAW TEAM

CLEVELAND, April 25.—"Cy" Young, major league pitcher and famous for more than a score of years, has signed a contract to manage the local club of the Federal League for the coming season.

BILL JAMES NEW HOPE OF PILGRIMS

STALLINGS' MEN BEAT DODGERS BY BRAINS

By L. R. MURDOCH.

It isn't the fact that the Pilgrims won a twelve innings ball game by the score, 1 to 0, that leads us to rejoice today.

It isn't the discovery that Bill James, hailed as a "second Christy Mathewson," has "delivered" that made all Boston shout with glee this morning.

It isn't the hope that has sprung once more in our National league breasts that makes us so happy this bright and sunny afternoon.

No, sir. It is none of these things, fellow-citizens.

It is the revelation, so long promised and so much deferred, that there ARE some brains in Walpole street, after all.

You who missed this portentious exposure at South End park yesterday afternoon can scarcely realize what this means to Boston unless we give you a sort of motion picture of what happened yesterday afternoon when Pilgrims met Dodgers. This, with your kind permission, ladies and gentlemen, we will now proceed to do.

And Here Endeth the Litany.

Our pitchers had failed. Our catchers had failed. Our batters had failed. Our base runners had failed. Our fielders had failed. We had done all those things that we ought not to have done and we had left undone those things that we ought to have done and there was no hope in us.

We could excuse the pitching. We could excuse the catching. We could excuse the batting. We could excuse the base running. We could excuse the fielding. We could forget that all these things, being mainly things physical, might be otherwise, in dire stress of time. But in respect to the things mental which do not have sprains, or "charley horses," we could not excuse it—

Bone! Bone!! Bone!!!

Yesterday afternoon Bill James, our rising young prodigy from the Pacific Coast, leased forth and pitched as nifty a ball game as you ever saw against one

"Lefty" Allen—a marvelous young neighbor of "Hub" Perdue, from down near Goliath, Tex., who delivered just as gifted a performance as "Big Six No. 2."

A "Comer" and an "Arrived."

The James you centered the Bois her aided as a comer. The Allen boy appeared wearing the label "arrived." For it was he, who on April 17 obliterated a 9 to 2 beating to the New York Giants—the only man, save his neighbor, the "Hubbard Squash," who has pinned it on Matty this season.

It was a strange sight a pitchers battle at South End Park, in which there were TWO pitchers, ONE ON EACH SIDE.

For ten innings they battled without score or threat of score. In these ten innings Brooklyn made but nine and contracted two bases on balls from the wonderful service of Bill James. Pity it, gents, adjust your lorgnettes, but it was "Lefty" Allen for one brief inning. Four Dodgers advanced as far as second base, none so far as third. One Brooklyn saw third base, but it was on a foul on second. It was all on the level as extremely narrow pitchers' contest, in which all the skill and cunning of big league baseball was exhibited.

But one error is all by Connelly plotted the fielding score.

Both James and Allen were pitching with their heads on and as the innings thoughout these ten innings, and Dodgers were getting men on, with the way, and contrary to the rule that has prevailed in Walpole street this season—had been turning the corners in as often as they strayed away from the safety of first base.

Cutshaw, a speedy little batter, bounced a fly to Connelly. Stengel then belted a grounder to Bill Mayer, who let it get past at first. But Myan filtered through and retired the play.

Here was a run on third base and Zack Wheat and Jake Daubert, the Dodgers champion sluggers, standing ready to clean it cross. And, there was "Lefty" Allen, whom Dutch Reis had knocked out ready to mow down these mere Pilgrims if that were necessary, and this give Brooklyn another opportunity.

But Custom Was Ignored.

If custom were followed, Wheat would have been permitted to drive in that run. For it has approached unto the dignity of law to with End Park for some years not to take anything that is not all over you, but to give anything that the other fellow wants.

In this case, however, Bill James parleyed and very nicely passed up Mr. Wheat and Mr. Daubert, and then put a little more on and delivered to Mr. Smith, who had been sent up to bat for Miller, a pinch hitter, who struck out. Then Allen, with Fisher batting, retired the side, which he was ready to mow down three more Pilgrims if that were necessary, and thus give Brooklyn another opportunity.

Stallings' left-handers had been unable to hit Allen at all in the early innings, although Calhoun had been fielding superbly on his first essay at first base. Stallings had extracted him in the seventh for Tex Meyer, a right handed hitter. In the last mentioned, Myers proved the wisdom of this by slamming a safe hit along the third base line, on which he managed to make two bases while Wheat was trying, in vain, to head off Connelly at third.

In this emergency, we had with us our one best little batter, Bill Sweeney, due for the fifth act. But Allen decided to retract Bill and try for a left handed hitter, in the person of Cy Seymour, who was next on the list after Sweeney. So he passed up the Pilgrim captain and the batter.

Wow, Bill delivered.

He fooled off two. Then he planted a couple of right field echoes to the foul line; would probably have cleared the park had three runs been necessary to win the ball game.

Of course there is nothing startling, perhaps, about pitching nothing in fact strategy, as called in baseball parlance, but it was startling. But it was startling, and pleasing to the patrons of baseball where it was exhibited yesterday.

Now for the finish of the game. Allen on over the incident in a fine and very clever manner, presented himself at the batting line for your kind attention and asking your pardon for his trifling upon the field of baseball while we're only years old) trots, etc.

P. S. James struck out nine men and Allen ten.

By their good playing the Bay Views have many friends and fans from all parts of the city and have already ranged well in the team still has a few open dates.

The lineup this season will be: Blowers, pitcher; McCarthy, catcher; Kennedy, first base; Walsh, second base; Kiley, third base; M. Prince, shortstop; Tracey, outfield; and Norton in the outfield with Hagerand as utility man. Add to all challenges to J. J. Logan No. 187 L street, South Boston.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

A FEW more wins like that 10 victory of the Pilgrims over the Dodgers and President Gaffney will be able to get out of doors. He has been confined longer, following the operation that was performed on him early this month, than was expected. He is doing very well and in the nature, course of events ought to be out in a few days.

Victory heals arnica all hollow for baseball, bridge and, as said before, a few more wins and Gaffney will discharge his doctors, throw away his medicine and gambol on the green.

THE victory also ought to do the Boston players a lot of good. James is some pitcher. That is what we all thought on the Southern training trip. James pitched against the Giants last Saturday and through a combination of circumstances lost by a score of 1 to 2. Yet in spite of the fact that he was beaten, Manager McGraw was so impressed with his performance that he offered the Boston club "pretty near a whole ball club" as Stallings expresses it, in exchange for the youngster from South.

JAMES worked well in every inning of the twelve that were passed. He used a spitball nearly all the time, though Whaling who caught his delivery, had him speaking over a curve once in a while. He had the control which is absolutely essential in the big leagues, and he fielded his position in good style. And it was James who started the rally in the twelfth inning that led to victory. He got on account of a bunt and was safe when the throw to first was delayed. Then Bert Whaling—who, by the way, can hit some—sacrificed, and Connelly forced him at second and Connelly finally scored the winning run. But it was James who started the ball a-going.

BERT WHALING looked like a million dollars behind the plate. He nipped back several Brooklyn base stealers early in the game and when he saw they could not take liberties with him they grew very cautious. In the eleventh they sneaked over a purloined bag, the runner getting a good start and Whaling's throw being a trifle low, but the steal went for naught.

WHALING played his cards well that inning. Whether on his own initiative or following orders from Stallings or Sweeney, he made James pass two dangerous batters in the eleventh when there was a man on third with two down. The next man struck out. Not only was this good billiards for that inning, but it brought the weak end of Brooklyn up for the twelfth and when the Dodgers failed to score in that inning the Bostons came through with the winning run.

MARANVILLE covers a lot of ground and is a prime favorite with the South End crowds. He made a sensational pick-up and threw off Wheat in the seventh inning.

ARTHUR DEVLIN also came through with a dandy one-hand stop off Fisher in the tenth inning. The old boy is playing the bag in good shape.

Boston Boys in Penn Carnival

English High Team a Favorite

The eyes of the Greater Boston schoolboys will be turned toward Philadelphia tomorrow, where Boston English High, High School of Commerce and Chelsea High will be represented in the Penn relay carnival on Franklin Field.

The High School of Commerce runners left Boston last night for Philadelphia, and will be followed today by the runners of English High and Chelsea High.

Three years ago the first Boston High School answered the call of the carnival management, and that year English won the schoolboy event and incidentally established a new record.

English High was represented last season, but was defeated, as one of its star runners was taken ill at the last minute.

English Has Speedy Team.

English High will put a quartet on the field that will be hard to beat by any schoolboy four After much careful training Coach Fred L. O'Brien made his selection for the team. The team is composed of Edward Barry, Lester Williams, Charles Morgan and Captain Irving Howe. If, T. Cahill will go along as a substitute.

This team will have three veterans who made the trip last season, Howe, Morgan and Williams, and this will be a decided advantage Captain Howe will again run anchor and on the schoolboy that pass him will have to be a wonder Howe has been a consistent performer this season Howe has been running the quarter so to fifty seconds, and if his teammates do well, English High should be a winner

Barry was not chosen for the team till the last workout, when he was timed better than Horace Cahill and won the place on the team. Williams is a fast boy and should hold his own against any schoolboy in the country.

The High School of Commerce boys will take a workout on Franklin Field this afternoon Coach Sherlock and the youthful athletes expressed great confidence in their ability to win when they left Boston last evening.

Captain Elmer Smith, W. C. Colvin, Alfred Beck and W. C. Baldwin is the quartet picked to uphold the colors of the Fenway School. Marcel Entter went to the Quaker City as a substitute.

Coach Sherlock had an abundance of material to pick a team from and his hardest job was to eliminate the men

Smith Best Quarter-Miler.

Captain Elmer Smith is the fastest quarter-miler in the schoolboy ranks in Boston, and with him at anchor Commerce has a great chance of winning the schoolboy championship of the country.

Coach O'Connor of the Chelsea High relay team has picked McBride, Bechel, Laing, Fox and Xanos to go to Philadelphia and these lads expect to make a fine showing. This is the first time in the history of the school that a team has been sent away to a big meet and Le boys are anxious to make good.

ATLAS A. A. NAME OF NEW BOXING CLUB

The new boxing club, which will open at the Boston Arena on next Tuesday evening with a twelve-round bout between Bartley Nelson and Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea, will be known as the Atlas A. A. It was first announced that the club will be called the Arena A. A., but there was a hitch in the granting of the charter and it was finally obtained under the name of the Atlas A. A. The club has established an office at No. 1,160 Washington street.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Joe Wood's determination to play ball, at any risk, threatens to keep him out of the game longer than would be the case if he obeyed the surgeon's orders

Wood's injured thumb has given him so much pain on his pitching hand that Jake Stahl had the hand examined by X-ray at one of the Washington hospitals. It was found that no bone was broken, but that a severe sprain exists, as suggested by the surgeon who attended Wood

Wood today showed the great Boston flinger that he could not work on the injured thumb, so all if he will do will be change of facing it here, so him and, his curves and his speed but all Sam men. He can't keep a bat or a ball out of Shanley Jones heads He is a great, big kid and must play ball whenever he can find a good spot to play on and a ball and bat to play with

Wood today showed its appearance in uniform at National Park yesterday by saying that he feared going into the want of practice if he kept away from the field But his physician said that the finger was injured so badly that amounted to soreness and pain

Should Take Layoff.

Joe was out in uniform yesterday and today, pitching to Thomas and Nunamaker and in catching the return throws, although they were easy, the ball could not help striking the injured thumb It was found up, but Wood would show better judgment if he kept his hands off the ball altogether for at least a week, according to his surgeon

If he does not use more care he may be on the "off" list the better part of the season—in the opinion of the wise old doctors.

Stahl had about decided to start Charley Hall yesterday, but Hugh Bedient warmed up with so much speed that he was sent to the rubber instead and won, 6-3. Jake is eager to make it three out of four here and, at the same time, get his veteran pitching corps in shape for the Western trip. He expected to use "Buck" O'Brien this afternoon, holding Hall in reserve

Manager Griffith was persuaded by the players to work Groom yesterday and said of Groom "If he will use his own judgment hereafter

President Wilson Sees Game.

President Wilson came out yesterday afternoon and occupied a box on the second tier This box is more private than the one he has been holding and he was provided with the splendid view he had of the field from the elevation The game is a hard fought, naturally and up and down with the Nationals holding the score in the lead holding and the Red Sox had been retired in the seventh everybody stood up as usual and, to the surprise of the crowd, the chief executive also arose with a smile on his face. He was given a tremendous cheer He withdrew shortly afterwards to keep an appointment He laughter remained, as did several others of the party that accompanied the President.

COMMITTEE TO ACT ON LIPTON'S NEW CHALLENGE

NEW YORK, April 25.—The New York Yacht Club has voted to leave the entire matter of acceptance, or rejection, of the Lipton challenge, in the hands of a committee of twelve members of the club of which Commodore Dallas B Pratt will be chairman

If the committee votes to accept Sir Thomas' challenge under the deed of gift the club tonight provided that it be empowered to arrange the details of the acceptance and the conditions of the race.

Lord Shaftesbury, commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, heads the committee through which Sir Thomas will make his plea for another race The challenge is an open one with no restrictions which resulted in the previous challenge being accepted.

It specifies that the races shall be subject to the same conditions as the last contest, in which he was defeated, namely, the best three out of five races, the first to be sailed Tuesday, September 10, 1913

The name of the challenger will be Shamrock IV., with a length on the water line of seventy-five feet and of cutter rig.

The Very Latest Parisian Coiffures ❧ Ears Completely Covered by Fashion's New Edict

COIFFURES BY CUVERVILLE, PARIS. PHOTOGRAPH, UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, NEW YORK.

As evidenced, the latest coiffures completely cover the ears, and the long earrings in vogue will now be discarded until Fashion dictates their revival. On the left is a marcelled coiffure that is parted at the left, with knot in the back and ornament of white beads and aigrette. On the right is a very loose and full coiffure with bangs loosely twisted, with a string of beads used as ornament.

On the left is a marcel-waved tight coiffure with a broad band held together by pearl buckle which holds in place a black aigrette. The coiffure on the right has the hair parted at the right, forming deep curves over the ears, and ending in loose curls. Two narrow ribbons of black velvet covered by rhinestone braid with a large white aigrette at the right, are the ornaments.

After All, a Woman Cannot Be Happy—Really Happy—Unless She's Married

THE ten days before Robert Maynard's wedding passed dully and monotonously for Beatrice Minor. Helen Robbins had changed her plans about coming to town, although she would run in for the wedding, she explained when the widow telephoned her.

Pleasanton was so lovely in its Autumn foliage that she and John had decided to stay on indefinitely. She appended to this announcement an invitation to her friend to run out for a few days and enjoy the brilliant October weather.

Helen never held resentment long, and had evidently forgotten her recent telephonic snub. But Beatrice declined the invitation hastily. She did not want to visit Helen's country house just now.

She had time to regret her precipitate refusal during the following days. At the end of a week, her loneliness and isolation were telling on her nerves. The children had returned to kindergarten, and when school hours were over they played out-of-doors with some other children, with whom they were safe.

Much of their mother's time was spent in the apartment with only Mary for company. Early afternoon she went out for a walk from a sense of duty, and, once, Dr. Haynes came by and took her for a short spin into the country, but he was busy and she saw him seldom.

She read until her eyes ached, and sewed until they ached again. She listened to her children's prattle when they were in the house, and, when they were absent, to Mary's gossip concerning the other families with whom she had lived.

She arose in the morning with no thrill of anticipation and went to bed at night with gratitude that in sleep, at least, she would have peace.

The monotonous life of a great city, where she seemed just now to have no friends whom she cared to see, oppressed her, and sometimes she longed for the Summer days in Pleasanton, where, at least, something interesting had happened.

Lacy Wrote Less Often

Keith Lacy wrote her less often than his role of an ardent lover would warrant, but his bright letters were an event in the woman's humdrum life. She answered them gladly and with many warmth than she might have used had she been less idle and depressed. She even mistook her loneliness for a desire to see her absent suitor.

As for Paul Maynard, Beatrice knew that he was improving slowly, and that he would not be severely disfigured. That was all. Twice when she called up his nurse at the hospital, Dr. Yeager had taken the attendant's place at the telephone, and, the second time, had given such brusque replies to her faltered queries that she hung the receiver up, flushed and angry, with the determination in her heart to forget Paul, wholly and forever.

This she tried to persuade herself she had done, yet she would sit motionless, with her book or sewing lying idle in her lap, for a half-hour at a time, a wistful, abstracted look on her face, and her thoughts on the man she was trying to forget.

Beatrice had thought at first that she would not attend Robert Maynard's marriage, but as the days crawled by and her life grew duller, she began to think of the wedding, of the people she would see there, and, still more, of the dress she might wear upon that occasion. She had a little money left from her fire insurance, and, though she had resolved to put it away in the bank, the thought of the new costume she might purchase with it was too much for her resolution.

All Misgivings Fled

The dress that she finally bought at "a special sale" cost more than she could afford, and she suffered qualms at the recollection of her extravagance. But when the costume came home, and she tried it on before her mirror, all misgivings fled as she saw its beauty.

She was doubly glad she had bought it when Miss Damarel, Robert Maynard's fiancée, called on her late one rainy afternoon.

"I know you are surprised to see me, and that my calling at this juncture is most unconventional," Miss Damarel said after the preliminaries of greeting had been exchanged and visitors and hostess were seated in the cosy living room. "But Robert said that you were all alone here in the city, and he asked me to see you and urge you to come to our wedding."

Beatrice assured her that she intended to be present at the ceremony.

"I have never had a chance to thank you," prattled on the bride-elect, "for your kindness to my dear boy in the past. He has spoken of you very often."

"I am sure that Mr. Maynard repaid me fully for whatever kindness I was ever able to show him," replied the widow enigmatically.

"He is the dearest man in the world!" declared Miss Damarel, sentimentally. "The best and the truest."

"A woman should always feel that about the man she is going to marry, my dear," replied Beatrice gently.

Sat Alone Thinking

When the happy girl had gone the lonely woman sat for a time in the dusk, thinking.

"After all," she muttered, "a woman cannot be happy—really happy—unless she is married."

Her thoughts suddenly turned to Keith Lacy with more warmth than she had ever before felt for him. After a little she arose and turned on the light in the darkened room and spoke out her decision.

"Yes, it would be best," she said softly. "I would be happier than I am now, at least."

A letter lay on the table underneath the mellow glow of the lamp. She remembered now that Mary had laid it there when she brought in the tea-service. She picked it up, and saw with a sudden thrill that it was from Keith.

"Dear Lady," the letter ran, "you will be glad to learn that I was married today to the dearest girl in the world, and that I am very happy. It has been a case of love at first sight, and I have written to you because you have been my dear friend and had unbounded patience, with my futile efforts to make you care for me as I foolishly thought I wanted you to care. I know that you will rejoice in my happiness. You were so kind to me in my boyish love that I am sure you will rejoice with me now that you know that real love has come to me. She is the 'little sister' of my partner, and has been visiting him.

"Always your sincere friend,
"KEITH LACY."

HIS ORDERS

THE proprietor of a certain restaurant had leased the reverse side of his bill of fare to a cartridge manufacturer, who prints advertisements thereon. The other day a customer in a great hurry ran into the restaurant, sat at the table, and was handed a bill wrong side up by the flurried waiter.

The customer put on his pince-nez, curled his moustache with his left hand, and shouted in a voice of thunder:—

"Bring me a filleted crab, a lardon on toast, two victorias devilled, and a fried dog-cart! Got any wheelbarrow stew?"

The poor waiter fled.

Advice to the Lovelorn ❧

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GO TO HER FATHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young girl for about two years. Her father objects to my going with her under any circumstances and wishes her to go with another young man whom she dislikes very much. I have always loved her and always will. For a while I thought she cared for me a little, but they have moved into another town, and it seems as if she has forgotten me and is going with other young men (I think against her will).

I have not been with other girls since I met her, and it seems as if I can't forget her. I don't intend trying to love any other girl on earth if her love proves untrue. What would you do under the circumstances? BROKEN ARROW.

HER father's objections must be overcome, and you can't overcome them until you know what they are. Go to him like a man, and tell him what you have told me. If you can win him, it will be easy to win the girl.

PERHAPS SHE FLIRTS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm in love with a girl. She doesn't seem to reciprocate my regard for her. My brother and I go to see this girl. By some strange fate we have kept on friendly terms. How long this will last, I can't say.

This girl went away recently, and sent us a card. She told him how much she missed him and specified the time of her return as "tomorrow afternoon." She informed me of the fact that she had received my card and "supposed" she'd get home "tomorrow." Difference, isn't there? LOVELORN.

HER cards sound as if she wants to keep both of you on her waiting list. Stand aside, and give your brother a chance. If that doesn't suit her she will soon let you know. But, don't, I beg, let love for this girl come between you and him.

DON'T TRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen and deeply in love with a man five years my senior. When he is with me he is very attentive, but he sometimes breaks a date with me on account of his business. He seems to care for his business more than he does for me. How can I make him love me more, and not break dates with me on account of business engagements? MAUDE.

HIS devotion to his business will be appreciated more by you when you are older, and know what a trail of trouble attends life with a man who neglects every business opportunity.

For this reason be glad, and don't try to make him negligent.

STOCK MARKET AND FINANCIAL NEWS

Stocks were irregular and inclined to go down in early trading today. Coppers were dull in this market. Where there was movement in that group it was generally recessional.

Boston & Maine sold down to 62½, a new low record, in the first hour, and then made a partial recovery. New Haven in that period dropped to 110. Business in the Mellen stocks was mostly in small lots.

Wolverine went up a point, and among mining stocks to descend were Greene-Cananea, Butte & Superior, North Butte, Calumet & Arizona, Lake and American Zinc.

In New York during the first half of the forenoon price changes were narrow, but most of the leaders were down. Illinois Central sold below 114 and then recovered to that figure.

French Still Fear War.

There is still fear of war in France, as is shown by a continuation of the hoarding of gold, which commenced when fighting began in the Balkans. The Paris financial correspondent of Hearst newspapers cables from Paris:

"It is useless to deny the assertion that confidence is not yet restored, for the actual cash still hoarded in this country is variously estimated at from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. Few capitalists will allow themselves to be coaxed into investments, and none is willing to indulge in speculation.

"Such incidents as the landing of a German military force on French territory and the fall of Scutari have had a distressing influence on the stock market, and tendency throughout the week has been dull."

The French government needs a lot of money. It is estimated that it will have to borrow $200,000,000 next year. The deficit in the budget his year will amount to $40,000,000, while there are enormous armament expenditures to be taken care of.

Bull Moosers and Tariff.

Progressives in the House are opposed to the Underwood tariff bill, but can do nothing effective against its enactment. How members of the Roosevelt party regard the proposed reduction of duties is voiced by a report by Representative Vicroy Murdock, a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He condemns the bill as injurious to many American industries, pleads for protection that is not prohibitive as under the Payne-Aldrich law, and urges the creation of a tariff commission.

Prices Waver in New York.

There was a wavering tendency to prices when the New York market opened. A few issues advanced. Others weakened. After a few minutes most gains were lost and prices were not far from the level which marked yesterday's final trading. Some stocks were soon put under pressure. Illinois Central was one of the weakest on the list because of bearish rumors regarding dividend prospects. It dropped more than a point to 115 immediately after the opening. Canadian Pacific followed its London lead, where it was strong on Berlin purchasing. It opened here at 241½ for a gain of 1¾. The last had an irregular appearance at the end of half an hour's trading.

Amalgamated, which sold ex-dividend, opened at 76¼ against 76½ at the close.

'L' Starts Express Service on Monday in Somerville

The Boston Elevated Railway Company will on Monday begin the operation of express service during the evening rush hour on three Somerville and Medford lines, running from Sullivan square.

The Medford Hillside cars will be operated without stopping to leave passengers between Sullivan square and the City Hall. Winter Hill from 5:30 to 6:30 p. m. This service is established at the request of the Medford Hillside Men's Club.

Between 5 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. cars on the Woburn and West Medford lines will not stop except to take on passengers between Sullivan square and the top of Winter Hill. This service is established in compliance with the recommendation of the transportation committee of the Medford Board of Aldermen, and the requests of numerous residents of Woburn and Winchester.

The new service, advocated by the AMERICAN in an editorial on April 4, will meet demands that cover a long period.

The National Museum has accepted one of the rare rhinoceri, shot by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in his African hunt in 1910. Besides this rhino there are three full grown lions and two cubs which are mounted in life-like pose.

Modern Fountains of Youth

The systematic and successful cultivation of physical beauty by the women of Europe, by Anita d'Este. The result of personal investigation and of serious study among the women of Europe, as this author, who spent years in the examination of "beauty culture" systems in the Old World, so interestingly sets forth in this article. Good Housekeeping's new department of "Good Looks" is to be conducted by the Countess of Warwick.

FORBES CALLS 'DIRTY FINANCE' BIG PROBLEM

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor of the American.

The New York Stock Exchange governors are manifesting unprecedented vigilance. They have done more real public cleansing than the public realizes. Yesterday's suspension of two members is significant of the new order. The Exchange also probed a complaint against an important banking house, but did not find that the facts warranted reprisals.

The AMERICAN has vigorously advocated Stock Exchange reform. It has also initiated again and again upon a fuller measure of publicity. But the managers of the Stock Exchange have no control whatever over non-members. This point is too often forgotten.

The Stock Exchange cannot make men honest. Governments have been trying to do that for centuries, but human nature has remained human nature. The best the exchange can do is to watch closely the doings of its members and immediately pounce upon wrong-doing. That more is being done in this direction than ever before no one familiar with the Stock Exchange will deny. That there is room for further improvement is also admitted.

Public Still Hostile.

Albany's attitude toward the so-called anti-Stock Exchange bills is somewhat puzzling. Nobody appears to know what will happen. The government is evidently in such a state of confusion.

Public hostility to Wall Street is still rampant. Several recent incidents have not tended to allay it. Numbers of newer industrial stocks have been handled disgracefully by insiders. Outsiders have lost heavily. Whether the Exchange authorities—or the financial authorities—can do anything to stop such flim-flamming is an open question.

A correspondent yesterday sent a lengthy communication which is illustrative of how a good many people feel about Wall Street. He berates me for not scolding Wall Street enough, for not "going for" Albany politicians and for once in a while discussing the better side of human nature. He refers to the unpleasantness of certain newer shares on the Stock Exchange and then adds:

"This dirty finance is in my judgment by far the most important question before the American people today. It seems to me that all classes of bankers, promoters and corporation officials. Every piece of such work is denounced on the Stock Exchange, which is only another way of saying that the insiders have played fearful havoc with pledges against the stockholders and the public. Juggling of figures for the benefit of officials specializing in the art of their profession is so common as to be almost the rule, and Wall Street rules indulgently as who should say, 'Yes, it's crooked, but it's part of the game.'"

Exchange Helpless.

The Stock Exchange appears helpless. It does not dare to discipline any of the "big men" because it is absolutely dependent on the co-operation of the banking houses and directors of the principal corporations for its existence.

A few years ago, when Mr. Harriman returned to Wall Street to die, the head of one of our largest banking houses went to see the dying financier. He dreaded and was then reported to have given out an interview in which he said: "Mr. Harriman, I hope you will do well out there." He enabled a rally in Union Pacific to shove it off his own and many friends' hands, after the insiders had unloaded, the stock was down some sixty points.

Did the Stock Exchange ever take any notice of this? No, it did not dare. This same banker today holds up his head and takes a prominent part in civic and charitable movements among men who presumably are honest and honorable. Are we uncharitable in assuming that the banking house of which he is head sold the Union Pacific before 200, where it has never been since?

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Hearings Before the Interstate Commerce Commission Are Demonstrating the Truth of the AMERICAN'S Charges Against the New England Railroad Monopoly

At the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission now in progress at the Federal Building, the officials of the United States government are demonstrating the truth of all that the AMERICAN has charged against the conduct of the New York management of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine Railroads, and has predicted what would follow as the result of that conduct.

The evidence already produced by the government investigation of the New Haven's books and financial condition must justify to the most skeptical man the opposition to the New Haven's monopolistic schemes which for six years has been steadily made by this newspaper, and by Louis D. Brandeis, Bernard J. Rothwell, George W. Anderson, Joseph B. Eastman, Robert Homans, Charles S. Hamlin, Frederic J. Stimson, Edmund D. Codman, David I. Walsh, Daniel J. Kiley, Henry C. Long, Norman H. White, James H. Vahey, Joseph B. Russell, Governor Foss and all the others of that numerous band of far-seeing and courageous men in the Public Franchise League, the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boards of Trade throughout the State.

The CONDITIONS REVEALED by the government investigation have been well known to men of affairs for a long time, but have been strenuously denied by the representatives and friends of the Wall street crowd which now controls the two New England railroads.

The public has not had proof of the CHARGES which were made against these Wall Street speculators, and their denials had more or less weight. But it does not now seem possible, in the light of the recent disclosures, that these denials can be repeated.

All that is left for those who are responsible for the DESPOLIATION OF TWO FINE RAILROAD SYSTEMS is the denial that they have personally profited by their grievous acts.

But the great patience of the American people has given the gentlemen in Wall Street and their agents in the management of the New Haven and Boston & Maine an undaunted confidence, in the face of facts which would overwhelm any other set of men.

On the very eve of these disclosures, and while the stock of the Boston & Maine, which once sold above one hundred and ninety, is selling below seventy, and while the evidence of their incapacity or determined unwillingness to manage a railroad properly has accumulated far beyond the point of proof, these men now have the EFFRONTERY to demand the right to recover their losses by raising the rates and passenger fares on the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Vice-President Buckland, representing the New Haven management at the investigation before the Interstate Commerce Commission, declared that the commission should consider the request of the railroad to raise rates and fares before they investigated the condition of the railroad. It was hardly necessary for Commissioner Prouty to answer this impudent proposition, but he evidently could not restrain his indignation. He explained to the wilfully dull mind of Mr. Buckland that it would be preposterous to ask permission to raise more money for this railroad by an increase of fares and freight rates, in the teeth of evidence that its money had been already recklessly squandered.

This demand for more money by men who have recklessly wasted what they had, in total disregard of the interests of the people whose help they now ask, is suggestive of moral weakness. It is like the dissipated, reckless youth who spends his own competence in wild and lawless debauch, becomes hopelessly sunk in trouble with all his property involved, and then, at last, writes home to his people, whose injunctions and feelings he has scorned and defied, FOR MORE MONEY.

This Wall Street cabal began operations on the once splendid New Haven Railroad only nine years ago. In nine years they have sunk the New Haven Railroad three hundred and twenty millions in debt. Of the THREE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY MILLIONS which these Wall Street speculators have made the New Haven borrow, ONLY ONE HUNDRED AND FOUR MILLIONS HAVE GONE INTO THE RAILROAD PROPERTY!

Their accounts have been juggled, their losses concealed, their service has deteriorated, and their stock has declined more than half the market value it once had.

This is the cabal which wants the people of New England TO PAY MORE FARES and higher freight rates in order that they may have more money with which to unbuild the Boston & Maine Railroad and improve its miserable service. It seems incredible that these men, who are responsible for the condition of the Boston & Maine, should believe that the public will intrust them with MORE MONEY, out of increased rates and fares, under the PRETENSE that they would devote it to legitimate railroad purposes and not to a mad pursuit of a railroad monopoly.

The present management of the Boston & Maine began to despoil that railroad from the very moment it took control. Part of the transaction by which the New Haven gained control of the Boston & Maine was the making of a contract between the Boston & Maine and the American Express Company, which plunders the Boston & Maine Railroad of more than seven hundred thousand dollars a year, and will continue to do so for years to come unless it is sooner set aside by the courts as a fraud on the stockholders of the Boston & Maine.

Seven hundred thousand dollars a year is two per cent. on the entire capitalization of the Boston & Maine, and it is five per cent. on fourteen million dollars, which would go a long way toward the upbuilding of that railroad. This is the result of ONE contract.

It is proved that this same management is diverting business from the Boston & Maine to the New Haven, robbing the Boston & Maine of its legitimate profits on one hand, while it is asking the public to make up OUT OF THE PUBLIC POCKET, by an increase of rates and fares, the losses which it thus causes the railroad to sustain on the other hand.

While the Boston & Maine has been starving since the beginning of the New Haven control, for want of engines, rolling stock, terminal facilities and the proper methods and facilities at junction points, the New Haven management has been squandering money in the purchase of stock of leased lines whose leases have from twenty-five years to eighty-four years yet to run.

The money thus WASTED is about six million dollars. This same management is now squandering millions in the useless construction of the Hampden Railroad, which is costing two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a mile. What useful purpose this railroad can possibly serve under the present conditions it is impossible to conceive. No disinterested railroad man can understand why money, now so precious to the Boston & Maine, is being spent on such an enterprise, when the legitimate business of the present railroad is almost stagnating for the want of facilities to move it.

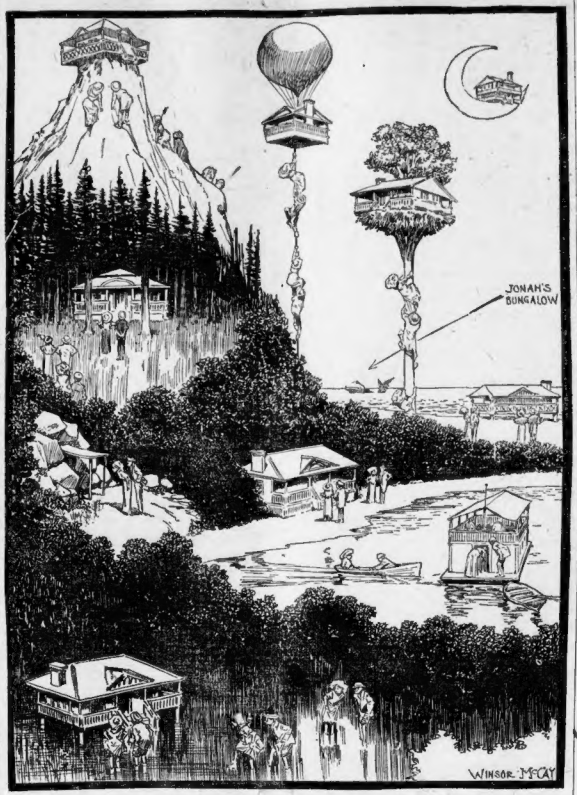
When the people who use the Boston & Maine Railroad submit to such an imposition and extortion as a raise of rates and fares, to be squandered by the present management of the Boston & Maine, they will be ready to SUBMIT TO ANYTHING.

While they still had some hope of the good intentions of the present management, they did submit to an increase of fares, and they have, through that increase of fares, already given the Boston & Maine Railroad eight hundred and eighty thousand dollars more money last year alone. This is enough. To give more would be an unparalleled folly.

If the present Wall Street crowd can see no way out of the slough in which they have deposited themselves except through a raise in rates and fares, then they are doomed indeed.

Through all this agitation the people of New England should bear one fact constantly in mind; it should remain fixed in their memory, to be as a pole star when their minds are storm tossed on the waves of debate over this vital railroad question. This fact is that a railroad controlled in Wall Street and managed for profits in marketing the securities which are issued against its increasing debts IS A MENACE both to its legitimate stockholders and to the public it serves.

Hunting the Bungalow



This is the season of sunshine, pure air and pleasure—in the country and at the seashore. It's your duty to get away from the paved streets and city dust, out into the country or seashore, with your wife and babies. As we said in a recent editorial: "Get out where you can see the sun in the day time and the stars at night, where your children can grow up, noticing the change of the seasons, realising that such things exist as Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter."

WANTS DEPUTY CHIEF APPOINTED BY CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Following are six reasons why House Bill 515 should be amended to provide for the appointment of the deputy chief by a civil service examination.

This bill is presented by Chief Whitney and does not provide for the appointment of the deputy chief by civil service, although the previous chief was appointed in 1906 by a civil service examination from the inspectors in the department.

Public safety is at stake on this position and it should not be made a matter of political pull, but the man should be selected entirely upon his ability to deal with the knotty problems that confront him in boiler inspection and installation.

Thinking this might be of interest to your paper, I take this opportunity of making you acquainted with the facts as they are, hoping that you will give them the publicity that I think they deserve.

1. Because the chief inspector of the boiler inspection department has been under civil service for seven years.

2. Because it was intended by Chapter 521 of the Acts of 1906 that the chief of the boiler inspection department should always be selected by civil service.

3. In 1907, the Legislature created a board of boiler rules, and designated that the chief inspector of the boiler inspection department should act as chairman.

4. As chairman of the board of boiler rules the head of the boiler inspection department must approve plans for the construction of boilers, and hold conferences with mechanical engineers who are experts on boilers.

5. This position should not be thrown into politics, as the public safety is at stake.

6. The State ought to have the best man in the Commonwealth to fill this position and it is only possible to secure such a man by civil service examination.

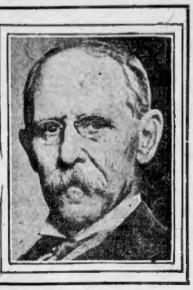
I remain, respectfully yours,

A. M. HUSSELL,

Chairman legislative committee, International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, Massachusetts State Branch.

What Are the Real Wonders of the World Today?

The Greatest of Them Are the Result of Treating the Mind as a Tool and Not as a Toy



By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I AM convinced," says an epistolary friend, "that the Panama Canal is the greatest wonder of construction that the world has ever known, and I don't see how it is ever to be exceeded, unless the United States should carry out Mr. Riker's idea of diverting and controlling the Gulf Stream by means of a gigantic jetty thrown across the banks of Newfoundland. But I should like to know whether you regard such things as a true measure of the superiority of modern times. Couldn't you make a list of seven modern wonders that would better represent the real progress of mankind?"

Of course, I can make such a list, and so can anybody. Our great mechanical triumphs are only a very limited expression of the advance of humanity. The greatest things that we have done are in the application of pure intelligence to the solution of problems presented by the visible and tangible world around us. The ancients were as good metaphysicians as we are, but our chief glory consists in getting out of metaphysical mists, and using the intellect as a tool instead of as a toy. Plato was a steam engine without a connecting rod. But we are not satisfied with seeing puffs of vapor driven out by a piston; we want to move something with our steam.

The World Has Been Going Forward Ever Since Galileo

If I were going to offer a list of seven modern wonders, conceived in this sense, of the application of the mind to something outside itself, I should wish, first, to define the term "modern," and I would make it include the three centuries that have elapsed since the days of Galileo. The world has never gone backward since his time. He was the first great experimental philosopher, and when he dropped a ten-pound and a one-pound cannon ball from the Leaning Tower of Pisa, and proved, by ocular demonstration, that they took the same time to fall to the bottom, he overthrew forever the ancient method of drawing blind inferences about the physical world out of the mind, instead of using the senses as a test and the intelligence as a guide and interpreter.

So, I should head the list of seven modern wonders with the discovery of the law of gravitation, which Galileo began experimentally, and Newton completed mathematically.

To that law—although we do not yet know what gravitation is in its essence—we owe not only our accurate knowledge of the universe, but many of our greatest engineering triumphs.

Invention of Telescope Should Be Second on the List

Second on the list, in the order of time, might stand the invention of the telescope, which, as a means of research, must also be credited to Galileo, who worked entirely in the modern spirit of using the mind as a means and not as an end in the exploration of the material world. By the invention of the telescope, and its corollary, the microscope, modern man enabled himself to penetrate, at the same time, the mysteries of illimitable space and the secrets of the realm of the infinitely little. What the results have been everybody knows. We can now deal with millions of suns on one hand and billions of microbes on the other.

Third, let us place the development of the science of chemistry, which has taught us so much about the constitution of matter, and which, some think, may yet reveal the secret of life itself. To review only a small part of what chemistry has achieved would, in itself, require a long article. There is hardly any part of human life and activity in which it does not play its role. But there are certain things that have grown out of chemical experimentation which are, perhaps, worthy to stand by themselves in our list.

Among these I would put, as the fourth wonder, photography. Beginning as a means of obtaining pictures of the human face, more accurate in their details than the hand could draw, photography has now become a means of discovering things invisible to the eye, both upon the earth and in the heavens. The greatest astronomical discoveries of recent years have been effected by photography. By using the X-ray, and by selecting certain chosen waves of light, we can picture, by photography, things hidden behind barriers impenetrable to ordinary vision, and things on distant bodies in space which are veiled from the eye by the confusing effects of too many kinds of light.

Fifth, I would put the invention of the spectroscope, an instrument which enables us to analyze light and to use it as a means of investigating the nature of substances and bodies, not only upon the earth but also in the sky. To the spectroscope we owe our knowledge of the constitution of the sun and the other stars.

Present Inventions Promise Much Yet to Come

Sixth comes the use of electricity, in telegraphy, and in the production of light, and the transference of power. These things are so recent that everybody knows all about them, or, at least, knows what their nature is.

Seventh, the establishment of the law of evolution. The idea of some such law was dimly present in the minds of some ancient philosophers, but, after their manner, they never thought of testing it by close observation of nature. Most of them used their minds with about as much practical effect as a miller would use his mill if he merely set the wheels turning, grinding only air and getting nothing but air out of it. Darwin set his mental millstones at work upon facts, ascertained by actual observation, and the result was a wonderful grist of knowledge which has transformed every department of science.

You will see, of course, that this is but an imperfect list of modern scientific wonders, but it covers many of the principal things, and, best of all, it promises other, and perhaps greater, triumphs to come.

REMEMBERING

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

If I could just remember, when the past is on parade,
Some little deed of merit for each big mistake I've made,
The other days, long vanished, would be glad days to recall,
But Memory leans toward wilder scenes—and I can see them all.

If I could just remember, counting back a score of years,
One act that made a loved one smile—not ten that prompted tears—
I'd dream the past dreams over and forget the wasted wine,
But Memory loves to taunt me with the errors that were mine.

If I could just remember, in the twilight of my life,
One speech that made for peace and love—not ten that hastened strife—
The future might seem dreary and the present might be bare,
But the past would be an orchard with a thousand songbirds there.
